HITLER MAKES NEW PROPOSAL TO PRESIDENT

CONDITIONAL OFFER TURNED DOWN BY NAZI LEADER

Berlin, Nov. 23 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, head of the National Socialist party, rejected today President Von Hindenburg's conditional offer of the chancellorship and at the same time made a counter-proposal of his own.

After deliberating on the question for more than a day, the Nazi leader wrote the president that he could not "undertake to solve the governmental crisis on a purely parliamentaary basis" as that was impossible because of the reservations made by the aged field marshal when he asked Hitler to become chancellor.

In his letter to the president, the National Socialist leader set forth "a clearly defined proposal by which the crisis can be solved within the shortest time."

Conditional Offer

He explained that he did this "in view of the hopeless condition of our fatherland, the ever-increasing distress and the obligation upon every German to do his utmost so that the people and the Reich will not sink into chaos."

In offering the chancellorship to Hitler, the president had stipulated that he must obtain a working majority of the Reichstag and that he must not interfere with the army, the established foreign policy and with the economic program now being carried out under the government's emergency decrees.

On good authority it was learned that Hitler urged in his letter that an authoritarian presidial cabinet, responsible to President Von Hindenburg, be appointed. In order not to complicate the situation, the Nazi leader mentioned no name for the chancellorship, according to an informed source.

The leader of the strongest party in Germany closed his counter-proposal with this solemn promise: "In the event of its acceptance I pledge both my person and my entire movement to the solving of the governmental crisis and thereby to the saving of the fatherland."

The letter attempted to meet the reservations set forth by the president when he made his conditional offer.

"Hitler Can Wait"

At Nazi headquarters the opinion was expressed that the communication paved the way for another personal talk between the president and the party leader in the course of which the president's misgivings about asking Hitler to form a presidial cabinet might finally be allayed.

"Hitler can wait," said Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, who was closeted with the Nazi chieftain most of the afternoon. "If he does not become chancellor now he will in four months."

General Franz Von Epp, one of the Nazi members of the new Reichstag, was even more optimistic.

"They will have to come to Hitler before another week is over if they do not ask him to form a cabinet now," the general said.

A statement pledging unswerving loyalty to Hitler was issued by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Joseph Goebbles, Ernst Roehm and Gregor Strasser, his principal lieutenants.

11 Persons Treated For Rabid Infection

Allegan, Mich., Nov. 23. (AP)—Eleven residents of Allegan, nine of them children, today began taking the pasteur treatment for rabies after they had either been bitten or scratched a week ago by a fox terrier puppy found to have been suffering from rabies.

Physicians said little attention was given to the injuries at the time, but a few days later the dog died, and an examination showed it was rabid. As fast as the persons bitten could be located, the treatment was instituted.

Those under treatment are Mrs. Ray Voltz, owner of the dog; two of her children, Betty, 6, and Sally, 18-months; H. J. Whitcomb, his daughter, Margaret, 12, and William, 18, and Robert, 16, his sons; Betty Jean Gates, 6; Don Smith, 5, and Max and Leroy Tooker, brothers.

Health authorities said that none of those treated has shown signs of infection, and stressed the fact that it was only a precautionary action.

BANK ROBBERS SHOT TO DEATH

Two Killed, Another Hurt After Slaying President

Boley, Okla., Nov. 23 (AP)—Two white gunmen and a negro accomplice fell today before the weapons of residents of this all-negro village who frustrated the attempted robbery of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank.

Enraged by the reckless killing of D. J. Turner, the negro bank president, who pulled a hidden alarm in the presence of the robbers, a sharpshooting bookkeeper dropped one of the holdup men. Townsmen finished the job.

The three robbers, two dead and one wounded dangerously, remained unidentified tonight.

In the word of W. W. Riley, cashier of the bank, "there was a regular war" after the first shot was fired by the white man who killed Turner.

Turner was rushed to Okemah, 14 miles away, but died en route. The bodies of the dead bandits, one white man and the negro, and the wounded white robber, were taken to Okemah.

Bank President Shot

The wounded robber, physicians said, had an even chance for recovery.

H. C. McCormick, bookkeeper, slipped into the bank vault as the robbers entered the building. President Turner pulled the alarm.

"Did you pull that alarm?" one of the white men asked.

When Turner admitted he had pulled the alarm, the robber said: "Ill kill you for that!"

His pistol blazed and the banker crumpled to the floor. McCormick, who had obtained his rifle in the vault, fired, too, and the robber fell mortally wounded at Riley's feet.

By that time the vigilantes and town officers were on the job outside. The second white man took charge as angry townspeople swarmed toward the bank. He forced Riley and Horace Aldridge, a customer, to drag the wounded robber to the door, hoping to gain a motor car parked across the street.

As they reached the door, bullets came from the vigilantes and the second white man fell. Meanwhile, the negro robber rushed to the motor car and drove down the street, but every weapon in sight was turned on him and the car.

The driver, mortally wounded, slumped in ihs seat and the car plunged into the curb, perforated with bullets. The $700 loot was recovered in the bank where it was dropped.

HOUSE PLANS BEER HEARING IN DECEMBER

CALIFORNIA WANTS APPROVAL OF WINE BILL

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Moving swiftly after informal conferences with President-elect Roosevelt, house Democratic leaders announced today that hearings on the proposals for legalized beer will start immediately after congress convenes.

The decision to open hearings on Wednesday, Dec. 7, was reached at a meeting of nine members of the ways and means committee held just as Mr. Roosevelt's train was passing out of the capital.

The five Democrats and four Republicans were together nearly an hour, during which they discarded suggestions for pre-session hearings.

The meeting was summoned by Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, and Chairman Collier of the committee. Both attended the several conferences between Roosevelt and his party's congressional leaders and both had conferred with Speaker Garner, the vice president-elect.

Seek Revenue Plans

Rainey declined to say whether his action was taken on the suggestion of Roosevelt, but did tell newspapermen the governor "certainly would like to see some more revenue coming in."

Though some members left today's committee gathering with the understanding the first formal meeting would be Tuesday, Dec. 6, the day after congress convenes, Collier later said he preferred allowing another day for the routine opening activities.

Collier said the committee would consider "such revenue plans as come before it, including a tax on beer." Rainely stressed beer as the prime object of the forthcoming meeting and said that all beer tax bills would receive consideration.

"Some of those present thought little was to be gained by starting before the session begins," Collier said. "There was also a question of having the necessary funds and jurisdiction before the house meets."

Collier explained that while a quorum of the committee's 25 members were not present, he, as chairman, had authority to fix the meeting date.

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, ranking Republican on the committee, said after the meeting that while a beer tax had been made the chief subject for consideration, "I don't think California will permit beer to come up without insisting on light wines."

Collier divided the problem of beer legislation into three parts. He gave them as:

"First, the declaration of alcoholic content.

"Second, determination of the proper tax.

"Third, methods of distribution."

He said the decision on alcoholic content rested with the judiciary

Shackled To Auto, Prisoner Escapes

Manistee, Mich., Nov. 23 (AP)—If Al Winekee, 27, can pry a pair of handcuffs from one of his wrists as easily as he broke loose from an automobile to which he was shackled he probably has made his escape from state police. The officers left him handcuffed to their motorcar while they entered a store. When they returned Winekee and the handcuffs were gone. He was wanted for questioning regarding a holdup.

POLICE PROBE ISLAM ORDER

Negro Religious Cult in Detroit Investigated After Slaying

Detroit, Nov. 23 (AP)—The order of Islam, a negro religious society, came under the eye of the police tonight, as its leader was held for immigration authorities, its secretary charged with disorderly conduct, and one of its membership held for the killing of a negro in a "sacrificial rite."

Robert Harris, 44-year-old negro who stabbed and beat James J. Smith, also a negro, to death on a crude altar Sunday, what he termed a "pre-ordained sacrifice," is under the murder charge. He insisted that Smith went to his death willingly, as a sacrificial victim.

Wallace Fard, said by police to be a leader of the Order of Islam, religious cult, is awaiting an immigration hearing. Officials said he came to the United States from Asia.

"Harris must have misinterpreted the teachings of Islam," said Fard, when questioned about the slaying.

Ugan Ali, secretary of the order, declared Harris was demented, and said he had no authority in the order. Police detained him on a disorderly charge, for further questioning. He was arrested in a raid on the cult's "temple." And records and rituals were seized.

Ali, police said, told them the Order of Islam has 8,000 members in Detroit.

WELFARE DIRECTOR

Grand Rapids, Nov. 23 (AP)—Louis A. Cornelius, local manufacturer, has been appointed social welfare director to succeed Dr. Eugene Nesbitt. He will serve six months without salary.

BY BRUCE CATTON

The eve of winter in a land which has something like 10,000,000 wage earners who have been separated from wages and jobs may seem a queer time and place for a day of Thanksgiving. But we have been indulging, as a nation, in a dour kind of pessimism for a long time, now, and there is little danger that we shall under-estimate the real seriousness of our plight; our chief danger, indeed, is that we may fail to realize what very good reasons we still have for continuing to celebrate this holiday which the Pilgrim fathers established for us.

Indeed, when you stop to think about it, they didn't seem to have much to be thankful for either.

A tiny handful of people had won a foothold on the edge of a wild and savage continent. Behind them was the sea, about them were many graves and a few rocky farms, and before them were three thousand miles of menacing forest and untracked wilderness. An unbiased observer, surely, would have forgiven those people for despair; for he could not have failed to see the odds were overwhelmingly against them.

But they met together, had a little feast, and thanked their God for his mercies; and they never, in their most uplifted moments, got even a glimmering of all the great good fortune that was to come to their descendants in the generations to come.

We stand today in a position not entirely dissimilar.

We have come through some very hard years, just as they had, and those years have taken their toll of us. But the world, somehow, has managed not to come to an end. In some way we have kept our neighbors from starving. We have had no social or economic overturns as a result of our troubles, no violence, no class hatred, no threat of revolution. We have, in fact, proved that we can tighten our belts and stand a thin time just as these folks on the shores of Plymouth Bay proved it long ago; and we are entitled to rejoice a bit over it, just as they did.

For, after all—who doubts that there are great, golden years ahead of us? Our situation today could be infinitely worse; but by this time we are able to say confidently that it will not be. On the contrary, we have every reason to expect that it will, eventually, be almost infinitely better.

So today we have our day of Thanksgiving.

JAPAN OPPOSES LYTTON COMISH

Protests Review of Report on Manchurian Situation

Geneva, Nov. 23 (AP)—Over objections by Japan the council of the League of Nations invited the Lytton commission today to take up the question of changing or adding to its report on the Manchurian conflict between Japan and China.

The suggestion was first made by Eamon De Valera, president of the Irish Free State, who is serving as chairman at this council session. Yosuke Matsuoka, special Japanese nevoy, immediately protested asserting that the commission was incompetent to discuss anything which had been said about the contraversy after the submission of its report.

This objection was overruled. The Earl of Lytton, head of the investigating commission, was called to the council table where he said that in accordance with the council's wish he and his colleagues would meet tomorrow to decide whether they wished to make any explanations or amendments.

The invitation was extended in order that the commissioners might have an opportunity to make any changes or additions they might consider desirable in the light of the observations made by both parties to the dispute since the report has been before the council.

The objections voiced by the Japanese spokesman seemed to surprise the large crowd of spectators. Mr. Matsuoka successfully protested against the admission of any opinion voiced by an individual member of the commission.

Before the invitation was extended, Mr. Matsuoka and Dr. Wellington Koo, China's spokesman, continued their discussion of the report. The Japanese delegate informed the council that there was no need to be frightened by charges that Japan has embarked on a course of conquest in Asia.

For 2,600 years, he said, Japan remained in its own islands without any attempt at expansion—a record which, he declared, testifies to "an innate love of peace in our race." He also criticized the anti-Japanese boycott in China as worse than military warfare.

Police Arrest Eight Pending Fire Probe

Detroit, Nov. 23. (AP)—Eight persons were under arrest tonight as police began an investigation of a fire in a LaFayette street home that resulted in two deaths.

The bodies of two unidentified men were removed from the ruins of the home following the fire on Monday night. Fire inspectors said they discovered cans which contained an inflammable fluid in the ruins, and reported the home was insured for $7,000. The arrests followed.

Mrs. Giralema Lafata, owner of the home and one of those arrested, said the six residents of the place were absent when the blaze started. She said she could not account for the two men being in the home.

Besides Mrs. Lafata, those arrested were: Michael Lafata, her son, and his wife; Mrs. Philipa Tocco, her son Sam, 20, and Sam Tocco, a friend of the family but no relative.

FORD SEEKING SHOALS PLANT?

Suit Claims Agents at Work on Scheme for Manufacturer

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Henry Ford was pictured in a suit filed against him in the District of Columbia supreme court today as attempting through others since 1930 to obtain control of the Muscle Shoals nitrate and power plants in Alabama.

The suit was brought by John N. Connaughton of Washington, who named as co-defendants with Ford, David M. Roll of Washington and R. Hugh Jarvis, formerly of Morgantown, W. Va., but listed in the suit papers as residing at a Washington hotel.

Connaughton contended Roll was acting as an agent for Ford in negotiations to obtain the Muscle Shoals plants for $88,000,000 and that a contract betwene them dated Dec. 3, 1930, was renewed for two years in July of this year.

The petition said Roll's profits were thought to have been $2,000,000 and Connaughton asked for an accounting.

Letters Presented

Connaughton charged that Ford, through the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey, sought to "cheat, wrong and defraud" him of his share of the fees, explaining that he (Connonghton) was an associate of Roll and Jarvis in the matter.

Copies of two letters purporting to be from Ford to Morrow and purported copies of contracts between Ford and Roll were presented as exhibits by Connaughton's attorney, Herbert S. Ward.

The suit charged that Ford set up in 1930 a corporation under the name of the Alabama Development company in which the motor magnate was represented "by certain straw men, one of whom was defendant David M. Roll, who is now president and secretary of the said corporation."

The papers also contended that at the outset, Thomas R. Cottrell of Birmingham was an officer in the company but was replaced by W. E. Carnegie, described as chief accountant in the Dearborn offices of Ford at that time.

One of the letters was dated Jan. 27, 1931, and quoted Ford as saying to Morrow: "I have such unfavorable reports of this man Connaughton that I do not wish to have anything to do with him and I very much dislike for Mr. Roll to be giving him any information as to my affairs, taxes or otherwise, as secrecy is the foundation for the agreement for me to pay Mr. Roll such an enormous amount."

The other copy dated Feb. 9, 1931, addressed to Morrow at his hotel here said Ford had talked with Cottrell "and was informed that a man supposed to be in the service of the United States government had called upon him and sought to

HOOVER WANTS COMISH TO GO OVER PROBLEM

PRESIDENT'S PLAN GETS COOL RECEPTION

BY JOHN F. CHESTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 23. (AP)—Climaxing a dramatic swirl of war debt discussion, President Hoover today launched—with the knowledge of President-Elect Roosevelt—a demand that foreign debtors meet the December 15 payments on their war debts.

Simultaneously and in the face of sharp congressional opposition, he proposed legislative creation of an agency to review international financial pledges in connection with world economic and disarmament problems.

In view of determined objections made on Capitol Hill, especially by Democratic powers in the house, there seems little chance for such a commission.

Lengthy Statement

Only a few minutes before Franklin D. Roosevelt left the capital and shortly after an extraordinary conclave of congressional leaders at the White House Mr. Hoover issued a lengthy formal statement declaring flatly against debt cancellation but suggesting "other forms of tangible compensation than cash."

Immediately there followed a chorus of mixed approbation and opposition. One senator and representative after another declared against a commission to review the debts. The same men, however, expressed approval of Mr. Hoover's stand against further moratorium or cancellation.

Some congressional leaders told President Hoover at the White House conference that he already had power to negotiate or set up a commission such as he proposed to negotiate with the foreign powers. The same view was echoed later by other prominent members of congress on Capitol Hill who did not attend the meeting, but in administration quarters it was held that the executive had no such power.

Speaker Garner, the vice president elect, who led the Democratic contingent into this morning's cabinet room conference at the White House, and later into parley with Mr. Roosevelt, reiterated in public a belief expressed by several at both meetings.

"Let them default?" he exclaimed in answer to questions. "Who said they would default? They won't."

Just what stand the president-elect himself took upon Mr. Hoover's statement of policy was not disclosed before he left the capital for Warm Springs, Georgia. Secretary Mills, who conferred with him after a morning spent with the president, was asked whether any commitments had been made by Mr. Roosevelt.

"Wait and see," was the treasury secretary's only reply.

Associates of Roosevelt said he had made no commitment.

The chief executive in his statement suggested that the agency he proposed to "exchange views" with foreign debtors should be closely allied "with the delegations to the world economic conference and to the general disarmament conference."

By such a course, under the direction of the president and with the final decision in the hands of congress, he asserted, this nation could "take the strongest possible coordinated steps toward the solution of the many underlying causes of the present calamity."

"It is unthinkable," he said, "that within the comity of nations and the maintenance of international good will that our people should refuse to consider the requests of a friendly people to discuss an important question in which they and we both have a vital interest, irrespective of what conclusions might arise from such a discussion."

Following his direct declaration that "no facts have been presented by the debtor governments which would justify" suspension of the December 15 payments, Mr. Hoover inserted a suggestion that in some instances payments in foreign currencies rather than dollars be excepted temporarily.

Where foreign currencies have

Debts and Disarmament The World's Puzzle

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three stories on the world's twin issue, European war debts and disarmament.)

BY MILTON BRONNER
European Manager, NEA Service

London, Nov. 24—For 13 years the nations of the world have talked about disarming and today, in net results achieved, they are practically as far from that goal as they ever were.

This fact stands out in bold relief as President Hoover and President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt met in Washington to discuss collection of Europe's war debts to the United States, and it tends to minimize hopes for any real action at the forthcoming disarmament conference at Geneva. Sessions are due to be resumed in January with delegates from 60 nations in attendance.

Uncle Sam's debtor nations in Europe now find themselves unable to pay the $247,000,000 that is due this year. Yet, they are paying $2,500,000,000—or nine times that much—for the upkeep of huge armies and navies.

For the world as a whole, the staggering burden of arms costs is close to $4,500,000,000 a year.

Though numerous disarmament conferences have been held since 1919—when 55 nations pledged themselves, by their signatures to the League of Nations covenant, "to reduce armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety"—this burden remains on the backs of the world's taxpayers.

Has Several Meanings

It is not difficult to understand why. "Disarmament" means one thing in Germany, another in France, something quite different

Age Of Earth Set At Three Billion

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 23. (AP)—Old Mother Earth has lived a long and noble life, scientists at the University of Toronto here have deduced.

They set the age of the earth at 3,000,000,000 years. This age was derived at after studying the rate of conversion of uranium into lead, and the passage of helium through quartz, it is explained.

Rocks in Parry Sound were measured by this lead system, and were found to be 1,090,000,000 years old.

NEGROES ADMIT HOLDUP MURDER

Pair Arrested by Police In Brohman, One is Wounded

Brohman, Mich., Nov. 23 (AP)—Two Gary, Ind., negroes confessed tonight, officers said, that they fired the shots that killed Fred R. Stone, Brohman filling station operator, in a hold-up attempt here last midnight.

They are Joseph Jackson, 35, who is in a critical condition from wounds apparently suffered in an exchange of shots with Stone, and James Hudson, 35, who was arrested tonight walking along a highway four miles north of here. Hudson, also known as Leroy Thomas, was released recently from the Indiana state penitentiary, state police said.

Jackson was arrested when officials discovered his wounded condition and the fact that he carried a revolver. Since only three shots had been fired from that gun and Stone was struck by four bullets, police said they were convinced the fourth shot was fired by Hudson, who admitted firing at the gas station operator.

Jackson is in a Freemont hospital, in a critical condition from wounds in his abdomen and side. Hudson is held at White Cloud.

Two other Gary negroes, Ben Leak and Ralph McKee, also are held on their admissions that they had been with Hudson and Jackson, but officers said they doubted that the two were involved in the slaying.

Killers' Destinies Rest On Alienists

Chicago, Nov. 23. (AP)—Into the custody of men who fathom out the workings of the human mind went tonight the destinies of Chicago's two boy killers.

For young Bert Arnold, happy-go-lucky 17 year old school boy, attorneys indicated they would provide a defense patterned after that employed to save Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold from the electric chair.

A defense of insanity already was being prepared for James "Iggy" Varecha, a year older than Arnold, who climaxed five years of robbery, shootings, and attacks on women by killing Frank Jordan, a salesman.

Composed and speaking with deliberation, young Arnold told interviewers he never would know why he killed his aged step-grandmother with a hammer when she refused him permission to use her car.

"Grandma always was good to me and I loved her," the boy said. "It was horrible, what I did. Some strange force made me do it. Something I had no control over forced me to do it."

Psychologists admitted there was some similarity between the crime Arnold committed and the killing of Bobby Franks by Leob and Leopold.

Police declined to comment on reports evidence had been discovered tending to indicate that Arnold had an accomplice.

State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchbourne announced today after a three hour conference with two alienists that he was convinced young Arnold was legally sane.

Man Seeks Loan Of Clothes To Attend His Baby's Funeral

Baltimore, Nov. 24 (AP)—This story is about a ragged young man who wanted a borrow "decent" clothes to attend his baby's funeral.

Drenched from the heavy rain, he walked into the family welfare office.

"I want to see," he said, "about borrowing a suit of clothes and a pair of shoes."

Mrs. Katherine Daiger, of the family welfare office, looked a bit dubious.

"Borrow?" she asked.

"Yes, just for a day—just for tomorrow. About 9 o'clock and I'll bring them back in the afternoon."

"Why do you want to borrow a suit?" Mrs. Daiger asked.

The young man wouldn't tell. He told her his wife had left him because he had been unable to get work and that he had a child, but he wouldn't say why he wanted to borrow clothes.

After almost thirty minutes, however, it came out.

"Is the baby with your wife?"

Tears ran down his cheeks.

"Our baby's dead. Died yesterday. The funeral's tomorrow. I haven't got a decent suit. I got to go, and gee, I can't go like this!"

Mrs. Daiger got him the clothes and in addition today had secured him a job.

Former Army Doctor Guilty Of Murder

Oklahoma City, Nov. 23 (AP)—Dr. Richard E. Thacker, 60-year-old former army physician, was convicted tonight of murder in the death of Ruth Hall, 21, of Bethany, Okla., as the result of an alleged criminal operation. The verdict provided a life imprisonment sentence.

Wife Of Calles Reported Dying

Mexico City, Nov. 23 (AP)—The office of President Abelardo Rodriguez announced shortly after midnight tonight that Senora Leonora Llorente de Elias Calles, wife of General Plutarco Elias Calles, was dying.

committee.

The Mississippian emphasized that today's meeting dealt only with procedure and not with the merits of the legislation. He said that personally he doubted that "a beer tax will balance the budget at the present time."

Questioned regarding a general sales tax, Collier said it "would offer another source of revenue," but added:

"I doubt whether any serious efforts will be made to press the sales tax this session."

Collier said he favored repeal of three cent first class postage, repeal of the check tax and abandonment of the federal gasoline tax. He estimated possible beer revenue at from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 and said that "when the sale of beer has been legalized," he wanted "to get as much revenue as possible."

In this connection, Collier said he would favor the bill by Representative O'Connor (D., N. Y.) for a tax of $7.50 a barrel, if it would bring in more revenue than the present tax of $6 a barrel.

The Escanaba Senior high school band presented a concert program Wednesday during the activities period of the school. The program was a John Philip Sousa memorial, consisting of Sousa marches. It was under the direction of R. P. Bowers.

Butter, Egg Bill Raises Havoc With Famed Friars Club

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—A butter and egg bill led today to the appointment of a receivership for The Friar's, famous theatrical club which has numbered among its members virtually all the outstanding theatre men of the last quarter century.

George Ehlenberger and company, declaring it had been unable to collect a bill of $1,130 for butter, eggs and cheese, said The Friars were "wholly insolvent" and asked for a receivership.

Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Callahan, granting their petition, directed Hyman Bushel, a former magistrate, to take charge of the club's property.

The Friars, of which George M. Cohan is the head and Alfred E. Smith an honorary member, was organized 28 years ago. Organized originally by a group of press agents to combat the fake pass racket, the club soon attracted actors and producers to its roster. Born in a chop house, the club now occupies an imposing home on 48th street.

When the club first began facing financial difficulties, last spring, Harry Hirshfield, secretary, remarked that The Friars objected to increased dues because they didn't want to owe so much.

Robins Now Normal, Is Enroute Home

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 23 (AP)—Colonel Raymond Robins, who dropped out of sight in September and caused a nation-wide sensation, sped out of Asheville in a large automobile late today, and headed southward, presumably for his Brooksville, Fla., home.

Accompanied by Mrs. Robins and other relatives, the prohibition leader and social worker, who was located Friday in the mountain village of Whittier, apparently suffering from a partial mental lapse, left the sanitarium in which he had been a patient shortly before 5 o'clock.

Dr. Mark A. Griffin, psychiatrist in charge of the hospital, confirmed the fact that Colonel Robins had left, and said a statement would be issued within 24 hours giving the whereabouts of the dry advocate.

Colonel Robins was described by the physician as being in "excellent condition."

WOMAN IDENTIFIED

Calumet, Nov. 23 (AP)—Found semi-conscious and suffering from exposure last Saturday in a rural road in Keweenaw county, a woman in a hospital here has been identified as Evelyn Magnuson, of Cold Springs, Ky. She has been returned to her home.

WAR DEBTS TO UNITED STATES HARD PROBLEM

in England and still something else to Italians. Just as acute as ever are the national rivalries, fears, jealousies and suspicions that have bred wars in Europe for centuries.

The barrenness of last summer's disarmament conference at Geneva is indicative of this. After many months of preparatory work and weeks of plenary negotiations this session produced merely an agreement that "a substantial reduction of world armaments shall be effected, to be applied by a general convention alike to land, naval and air armaments." True, there was an extension of a armament truce, but this was the net result as applied to reduction.

Prospects for greater results at the January session are hardly more promising. Before this session, as matters stand now, will come two principal proposals.

One is President Hoover's proposal for a horizontal cut of 25 per cent in armaments, which was politely sidetracked last summer.

The other—newer and more involved—is the French proposal recently promulgated by Premier Herriot of France. Though it bears Herriot's name, it is said to have been evolved largely by Joseph Paul-Boncour, France's dapper and keen-witted little minister of war, and the French army general staff.

Herriot's Four Points

After a fashion, the Herriot plan would give teeth to the toothless agreements—such as the Kellogg-Briand pact to outlaw war—that have arisen from the deliberations of the diplomats.

Reduced to its essentials, the Herriot plan provides:

1—Arbitration between nations shall be compulsory.

2—All armies on the European continent shall be conscript armies for national defense, and these shall be debarred from using certain implements of war such as bombing planes and heavy tanks. Professional volunteer armies shall be dissolved.

3—To preserve peace in Europe, an international army shall be formed under the League of Nations, subject to direction by the League council, for concerted international action against any agressive nation. Each of the contracting power would place at the disposal of the League, as a force for joint action, a certain number of troops to be kept in constant readiness.

4—Combined with the joint army plan would be binding pacts against aggression, intended to hand the remainder of continental Europe against any nation declared an agressor by the League.

No sooner had Herriot announced the new proposal than the old fires of conflicting interests, jealousy and rivalry began to burn anew.

Italy reacted adversely because Herriot seemed to be aiming at the dissolution of the Fascist militia, which the Italians hold is none of France's business.

Each Nation Has Objections

British opinion was rather sour since it failed to clear up points relative to air disarmament in which Britain is much interested.

The Germans and the Italians also objected to the proposal that nations with overseas possessions shall retain their colonial forces. France has her heaviest colonial forces across the Mediterranean in North Africa, constituting a powerful army which could be transported to Europe in short time; Germany was stripped of her colonies in the war.

Even the French public saw objection to the Herriot plan, because, in a measure, it gave equality to Germany, their dreaded enemy. But perhaps Herriot was wiser than they; Germany is straining at the bonds of military restriction imposed by the Versailles treaty, and will have equality sooner or later. France has a stationary population of 40,000,000, Germany a growing population of 65,000,000; perhaps Herriot figures it would be wiser to give Germany equality, rather than wait until a day when she will burst her bonds and blast her way to Paris to achieve it.

England, like the United States, is opposed to any plan which would seek to transfer sovereignty over her forces to the League of Nations. In making such a proposal, the French are right back where they started in 1919 when the Versailles treaty was written. At that time, President Wilson and British Premier Lloyd George pledged their countries to come to the aid of France if France were attacked. Neither of the American Senate nor the British Parliament ever approved this.

Each Has Own Conditions

Equally difficult are such questions as what constitutes an army sufficient for national defense in view of conditions peculiar to each nation; of various geographical considerations; of the needs in relation to the present status of each nation, with reference to frontier guards, military organizations, etc.

Italy, which has risen in recent years to menace French power in continental Europe, seems deeply suspicious of it all. It takes the view that the Herriot proposal, in demanding that internal police forces be regulated and private armies disbanded, is aiming not only at the Steel Helmets and Hitler's Nazi army in Germany, but also at the powerful Fascist militia—Italy's pride and her strongest arm.

It is not unlikely that Mussolini's representatives at the conference will insist that the best way to disarm is to get down to brass tacks and adopt the Hoover plan, at the same time flaying the Herriot method as "hazy" and "too complicated."

Failing in that or in some similar speedy and drastic action, Italy may favor Germany's plan to re-arm. Bound up with this may be a friendly gesture in favor of Hungary and Bulgaria re-arming, too.

Entente Versus Entente

There are those who say that Mussolini's fixed policy is to be at cross purposes with France. There is some truth in that. But there is also self-protection in it. With heavily armed neighbors like Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Poland, each bound up with France, Italy naturally has made friendly gestures to Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria which are still burning with wrath at the way they were dismembered by the peace treaties.

One does not have to look deeply to realize the fundamental difficulties that menace agreement in any conference in which 60 sovereign nations participate. Having conflicting interests, they naturally have conflicting aims. Being sovereign nations, there is no way to compel any of them to do anything. Moreover, decisions—to be effective—must get unanimous agreement.

All of which helps explain the futility of disarmament conferences in the past and bodes ill for success in the future, unless the prospect of material reductions in their war debts to the United States in return for disarmament measures can drive these nations to agreement.

Such a "trade" has been suggested by Senator William E. Borah and others as a practical solution.

NEXT: The important part that Germany plays with relation to both war debts and disarmament.

HOOVER WANTS COMISH TO GO OVER PROBLEM

depreciated and there has been a general fall of trade, he said, payments in dollars in some instances might not be possible "without losses on both sides."

"If any such circumstances exist and are called to the attention of this government," he added, "I shall transmit them to congress for prompt consideration, but I must insist that existing agreements be respected until they have been mutually modified by duly authorized representatives of the governments affected."

Speaker Garner said later that in the cabinet room conference, Mr. Hoover and Secretary Mills had spoken of guarantees that the exchanges be made up within 30 or 60 days on the face value of the dollar.

"I don't see any great objection to that," Garner said, "because we don't lose anything and the foreign governments won't gain anything except possibly a little interest."

Others of the 14 congressional leaders who attended the cabinet room meeting, he said, apparently had no objection to this plan. Although word of the president's proposal to establish a debt commission spread swiftly through the capitol, Democratic and Republican leaders in the senate and house alike reserved their major comment until the presidential statement was issued.

The leaders radiated out from the executive offices into other conferences and back to their offices and Capitol Hill, but immediately after the Hoover statement there came a barrage of comment.

ROOSEVELT STATEMENT

Aboard Roosevelt Train Enroute to Atlanta, Nov. 23 (AP)—President-Elect Roosevelt said tonight in a statement that debtor foreign nations could make the most convenient and effective contracts with the American government through the existing agencies of diplomatic intercourse.

In a 500 word statement issued shortly before his train arrived at Lunchburg, Va., on his way to Warm Springs, Ga., Mr. Roosevelt renewed his assertion that the immediate questions raised by the British and French notes created a responsibility resting upon those now vested with legislative and executive authority.

"With regard to general policies respecting these debts," he added: "I firmly believe that an individual debtor should at all times have access to the creditor; that he should have an opportunity to lay facts and representations before the creditor and that the creditor always should give courteous, sympathetic and thoughtful consideration to such facts and representations."

This principle, he added, applied to nations as well as individuals.

The statement of the president-elect was made in the nature of an explanation of his views in the face of the statement issued late today in Washington by President Hoover.

It was given to newspapermen after a press conference. He explained that Secretary Mills had brought to him a copy of the president's statement this afternoon at the Mayflower hotel in Washington. Those close to Mr. Roosevelt interpreted a reiteration of the assertion he made in his telegram accepting the president's invitation to a conference as indicating that he not only regarded immediate debt decisions as problems to be met by the present congress and the chief executive, but as a further signal that he did not wish to be regarded as attempting to dictate to the present congress.

Former Publisher Claimed By Death

Grand Haven, Mich., Nov. 23 (AP)—Horace Greeley Nichols, former publisher of the Grand Haven Daily Tribune, died at his home here this afternoon from the effects of a fractured hip suffered five months ago. He was 82 years old and retired from active newspaper work in 1924.

He purchased the newspaper first known as the Grand Haven Daily Herald in 1891. Its name later was changed to the Tribune. He sold the business to a son, Harry S. Nichols, and Kingsbury Scott in 1904.

get certain information concerning Muscle Shoals and seemed to pretty well known what was going on, and I believe it to be one of Hoover's men trying to get some information in order to draw us all before some kind of investigating committee and that is just what we do not want."

Details of the manner in which control of the project was to be acquired were not given. At the war department, officials said they knew nothing of plans by the manufacturer to lease or buy the project since an offer he made some years ago was rejected.

Adventurers Unite For Thanksgiving

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Fate dealt a strange hand tonight to six members of Admiral Byrd's Antarctic expedition.

All of them "on the beach," or out of a job as landlubbers call it, they happened to wander, one by one, to the seamen's house on the west side. They'll eat turkey together tomorrow.

The sailors are Harry King, William Gawronski, John Cody, Isaac Erickson, Charles Pressler and A. B. Creach.

GARDEN NEWS

Garden Mich (Special)—Local church services: St. John the Baptist, Garden, Friday, November 25th, at 7:30 p. m. Stations of the Cross followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Sunday, Nov. 27, 10:30, High Mass; 2:30 Baptisms; 7:30, Stations of the Cross followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Fr. V. C. Savageau.

Congregational Churches, Wednesday, Nov. 23, 7:30 Fayette; Thursday, Nov. 24, 10 a. m., Rapid River. 2:30 p. m., Isabella. 7:30, Cooks.

A cordial welcome is extended eo all who are not worshipping elsewhere to worship with us at any of these services during the Thanksgiving period.

A supply of T. B. stamps has been received in local schoools for distribution among the children and their respective families.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cooper and family left here Saturday for their home in Grand Rapids after spending the week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Farley. Mr. Cooper spent the greater part of the time hunting but was unsuccessful in filling his license. For several successive years in the past, he has been fortunate in getting his buck immediately on tte opening of the season.

Mrs. Jack Cooper of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Joseph Farley, Mrs. Edward Joque, Mrs. Edward Purtill, of Garden and Mrs. Leslie Devet of Fairport, spent Friiday at the home of Mrs. John Heric of Manistique.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Abel of Escanaba, spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Mary Hennesey.

Mrs. Harry Hennessey was confined to her bed two days last week on account of sickness.

Mitchell Fulsher took a load of dressed meat Friday from the Camp nine farm, to the Bonifas Lumber Camp at Marenisco.

Edward Boudreau left here Thursday for St. Ignace where he will remain during the remainder of the hunting season. He is assisting conservation officers in checking and tagging deer carcasses as they are being taken across the straits.

Returning from Escanaba Sunday night with a party of friends, Wesley Horning had great difficulty trying to avoid a deer which was on the highway. He was compelled to run his car right to the edge of the road and just narrowly avoided striking the deer.

James Deloria and brother Walter, left Tuesday for their home in Milwaukee after spending the week-end at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deloria.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Feldhuzen and family of Iron Mountain are spending the week with Mrs. Feldhuzen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deloria.

Sunday was a hard day for motorists on the Peninsula. Numerous cars skidded on the highways and had to get help to tow them back again. No serious accidents happened.

A party comprising James Tatrow, Gordon Tatrow, Wallace Latulip, Dighton Tatrow, Andy Tatrow and Bonard Tatrow are out in the woods hunting. All of the party except the two latter men have already filled their licenses. This was the first occasion on which Mr. Latulip had gone out as a hunter but he got a two hundred pound buck. Other men to come home happy are Leo Lester and Vernon Potvin.

A chimney fire on the George Joque residence about five o'clock Sunday afternoon was the cause of a fire alarm being turned in to the village department which responded promptly. Though it was one of the worst chimney fires known here, it was kept under control and no serious damage was done. The Joque residence is located only a few hundred feet from the place where a rubbish fire was made and called out the fire department just two nights previously.

Roy Laux of Fayette has been out of school during the past week on account of sickness.

Mrs. Gaffney, who has been seriously sick for several weeks is much improved and is able to take part of her meals at the table.

Garden High Honor Roll, Second Term

Senior — Katherine McNally, Leola Farley, Percy Joque.

Two families on their way to the Fayette church Sunday afternoon saw a large buck on the highway only a little distance ahead of them. Its tongue was protruding and its general demeanour gave every indication that it had been chased, almost to the limit of its endurance.

Special Harvest Thanksgiving services will be conducted in the Fayette Congregational church, Wednesday evening, commencing at half past seven. Various thankofferings will be presented and a special program of musical selections is being prepared for the occasion. Similar services will be conducted in the Rapid River Congregational Church Thursday morning, commencing at ten o'clock. If not worshipping in any other sanctuary, the public is cordially invited to be present, irrespective of whether or not a thankoffering is brought.

Several local commercial fishermen report the loss of nets through the formation of "anchor ice" around their nets. A very conservative estimate indicates that at least fifty or sixty of the nets have been lost by the Garden men alone.

Floyd Chaffee of Fairport spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hennessey.

Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Beardsley spent the week-end at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyons of Menominee.

Mrs. Leslie Devet and son Leslie of Fairport, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Purtill.

Mrs. Alphonze Lavigne of Manistique spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aristides Thibault.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lund and sons Berthal and Bernard, Mrs. Harry Bockorny and son Robert of Cooks, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hynes.

Miss Faye Deloria left here the early part of the week for Milwaukee where she will visit relatives over the Thanksgiving period.

Dr. John Rich of Gould City spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. John Lown.

Mr. Trombley, who has been making his home with William Latulip north of town, is now making his home with Mr. Philipps at the Henry Arp residence in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Mercier and family of Nahma spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Mercier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lacost.

Boys Describe Their Trips To Dairy Congress

Two more letters of appreciation from boys who win trips to the dairy congress in Waterloo, Ia., last fall, as a reward for their achievement in the 4-H calf club contest at the Upper Peninsula State Fair, have been received by Secretary George E. Harvey.

Odin Skog of Iron Mountain describes his visit to the Madison Dairy Farm as follows:

"The Madison Dairy farm contains 500 acres of cleared land. Eight acres was in corn, which was like a marsh. This land was so wet that they had to tile-drain this 80 acres. They had a pit dug, which was 15 by 20 by 6. When the water rose to a certain height in the reservoir the electric pump was started to pump the water into a lake nearby. It took one month to fill the eight silos. They had five different breeds of dairy cattle on the farm."

Franklin Walker of Sault Ste. Marie writes as follows:

"I wish to thank those who were responsible for the Achievement Contest at the Upper Peninsula State Fair. The trips which are awarded by it are certainly fine. I hope that every club member in dairy work will take advantage of this contest next year.

"On the trip this year each of us was to write about some place we visited. We all took a different place to write about. Mine was the stop at Fort Atkinson, Wis. There we visited the Hoard's Dairman plant and farm and the James Manufacturing company.

"We went first to the editing department of the Hoard's Dairyman paper. Mr. Walker, one of the men in this office showed us through the printing plant. (I might mention that this Mr. Walker was up in Chippewa county in the spring of 1929 and was out to our place with Mr. Rood.) We saw the plant in operation and Mr. Walker explained many of the machines. Then he took us out to the Hoard farm a few miles out of town. Mr. Hoard started this farm several years ago for the purpose of improving the information in his paper. It is an ordinary farm but is well taken care of by the hired help. They have a fine herd of Guernsey cattle there.

"Going back to Fort Atkinson we went to the sales building of the James Manufacturing company. We didn't have time to visit the plant. We spent about half an hour there looking at Jamesway barn equipment that is up for sale. One of the things of interest was the new milking parlor. We saw two of these afterward in operation—one at a dairy farm at Madison where one man milks eighty Guernsey cows in three hours where he uses four Delaval milkers in one of these new milking parlors. The other was at the Cattle Congress at Waterloo, Iowa.

ENGADINE

Engadine, Mich. (Special)—Edward Kirkbride of Pickford, returned home last Sunday after a two weeks visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Patterson.

Miss Ruth Turnbull of Newberry returned to her home Monday after spending the week end as the guest of Miss Phylis Quinn, at the Engadine Hotel.

Fred Griffin of Manistique visited friends here over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Necquette and son Leonard will leave here Wednesday for a two days visit with relatives in Lena, Wis.

Stores Fill Orders For Holiday Birds; Weather Is Nippy

Lower poultry prices will place turkeys, ducks, geese and chickens on many Thanksgiving tables in Escanaba today. Turkeys sold from 6 cents to 9 cents lower a pound this year, ducks were about 5 cents a pound cheaper than in 1931, geese dropped 4 cents and 5 cents a pound. Other essentials of the Thanksgiving meal had corresponding reductions in price.

Escanaba markets reported business on a par with last year on poultry and holiday dinner requisites, with some dealers finding business slightly better than last season.

Crisp weather, typical of Thanksgiving Day, was forecast for Escanaba over the holiday, with fair or slightly cloudy skies, lower temperatures, and fresh west to northwest winds.

Democrats to Meet At Sault On Dec. 3

William A. Comstock, governor elect of Michigan, will be honored by Democrats of the Eleventh district Dec. 3 at a banquet to be held in the Hotel Ojibway in Sault Ste. Marie, planned as the first public appearance of Mr. Comstock since his election.

Elaborate arrangements for the affair are being made. Guests of honor will be John K. Stack, Jr., Escanaba, auditor general elect, and Prentiss M. Brown, St. Ignace, congressman elect.

Thanksgivings

—then and now

WHEN the Pilgrims landed in America in 1620, the future was filled with uncertainty.

No wonder, then, that Governor Bradford set aside a day in December, 1621, to thank God for His goodness in providing bountiful crops during their first year's stay in this country.

In modern times we have much more to be grateful for than the Pilgrims had in 1621. The comforts and conveniences and luxuries of the present day are truly wonderful.

Let us enter into the true spirit of Thanksgiving Day, and give thanks for the blessings which time has brought.

THANKSGIVING DAY

THANKSGIVING DAY has rolled around again to find the world still in the throes of the depression. Many folks probably feel that they have little for which to be thankful, since months of unemployment, denial of the comforts to which they had been accustomed and other difficulties have not been enjoyed.

If we enter into the spirit of the day, assume an optimistic attitude, and take an honest inventory of our material and spiritual possessions, we can still find some reason to be thankful, however.

We have not been subjected to the abuses and hardships that were subjected to the people of centuries past. The Pilgrim Fathers were in constant peril of attacks by unfriendly Indians, their food supply depended upon what they were able to grow themselves and this was uncertain as the weather, and there were no welfare agencies, such as the Red Cross and Salvation Army, to see that no one went unclothed and unfed. These hardy pioneers did not get much of the comforts of life, but still they were sincerely thankful for whatever blessings they received.

Admittedly, unemployment is the scourge of present day civilization, but we should be thankful that the leading minds of the world are making a serious study of the problem and we are confident that a solution will be found. Recovery from the economic depression of the last three years is now well under way, and things are looking brighter all around. Conditions are bad for some folks, it is true, but they will not always be this way.

Let's observe Thanksgiving Day today in the typical Christian and American spirit. Just doing this will do us a tremendous lot of good.

JOB SEEKERS ACTIVE

VICTORIOUS Democratic candidates in Michigan and elsewhere are being deluged with letters and personal calls from political job seekers. Like a flock of ants they rush hither and thither to obtain their share of spoils, and the average citizen is given the impression that the only reason elections are held is for the purpose of giving jobs. Who will get this office and who will get that one seems to be the paramount question, with the interests of the people and their government taking a back seat.

The Democratic party has a wonderful opportunity to make a good record for itself. But it should remember this. It did not win its impressive victory in the November election because of Democratic officeholders. The landslide resulted from the desire of the people for a change. It was a protest not exactly against the Republican party, but rather a protest against the conditions that have arisen during the years of Republican rule.

The Democratic party cannot strengthen itself during the next two years in Michigan and the next four years in Washington by merely handing out a lot of jobs to its supporters. It can never reward everyone who has voted Democratic. The best way to reward these people is to give good, sound and efficient government.

The Democratic party owes no particular person or clique anything for its success at the polls. But it owes a lot to the people. If the Democratic party carries out the campaign promise to abolish or curtail useless bureaus and commissions the people will express their appreciation, but if it merely removes Republican jobholders from the bureaucratic machine so as to find room for the Democrats, who wish to take a free ride at the expense of the American people, it will surely ride to a fall in the next election.

Sound political sense, it would seem, would dictate that the Democratic party be very sparing in its handouts. If it endeavors to reward a portion of the citizens, who voted Democratic, it will invite the displeasure of a larger percentage, who could not be taken care of.

The government has been returned to the hands of the masses. And this aroused electorate will break any political party that does not serve for the best interests of all of us.

CORRUPTION AT POLLS

TESTIMONY offered the House sub-committee about vote-buying, intimidation and what-not at the polls in Philadelphia during the last election does not make very encouraging reading, but there is no reason for anyone to be really surprised by it.

That sort of thing is simply the price we pay for permitting unscrupulous political machines to dominate our large cities. The Vare outfit, which stands accused in this particular instance, is charged with no more than Tammany has done repeatedly in New York, no more than Chicago has seen dozens of times.

Nor will that sort of thing end until the great machines are broken. And the machines won't be broken until the average man takes a far keener and more intelligent interest in his local government than he has ever taken yet.

THE FOXY FOLKS

(Emporia (Kan.) Gazette)

THE folks are foxy. They know what they want. The vote on the income tax amendment and the tax limitation amendment prove how wise they are in voting their convictions.

Apparently the people of Kansas turned down the vicious tax limitation amendment and adopted the income tax amendment and in each case made their choice so evident that there can be no question about it. The principle of the tax limitation was good but it was hog tied by someone who knew exactly what he was about when he put in the clause which limited amendment by popular vote in any community to a majority of all those eligible to vote. No election in this state ever has been that unanimous. So it was the bar across the path of home rule in taxes by a majority. A two-thirds majority of those voting at the election would have been fair. The other clause was vicious.

As to the income tax amendment, it has been before the people now for four years. The matter has been discussed up one side and down the other. No point of view, pro or con, has been neglected. And the folks have spoken finally and definitely.

The first thing the legislature should do is to segregate the income tax to some special fund which will reduce the taxes on homes and farms. The income tax fund probably should go to the schools of the state, the common schools, the country schools preferably. They may be partly supported by the income tax returns. But if they are so supported, a district receiving income tax aid should not be allowed to receive it until it cuts down its school levy on land and homes. There should be no partisanship about this issue in the legislature. The people of Kansas have spoken outside of party. They should be served outside of parties.

And here again is a warning: The folks are foxy. They will know if any Republican or Democrat in the legislature tries to play politics with this income tax amendment. And will they swat him next time?

Trust 'em. You can't fool 'em.

Now Helene Madison, the swimming champ, has signed up with the movies. One-piece suits never bothered her sense of modesty, but what will happen to it when they hand her a movie-style evening gown!

Prosperity is near. On Dec. 15 England is supposed to pay the United States $95,550,000, France $10,261,432 and Italy $1,245,437—all payments on war debts. But let's wait until Dec. 16 before we plan a party.

It's not only the stew that staggers. Jig-saw puzzles will get you that way.

The trouble isn't that small boys have no mark to shoot at these days, but the snow won't always pack.

Week-end Murder

(By NEA Service) BY GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

CHAPTER XV

LINDA glanced again at the clock. After half-past 10—how the time sped by! Tom was still to be convinced and some plan to be agreed upon to hold the house party together.

"We must think of some way of keeping them here," she went on, "without giving everything away. Tell them—well, I thought perhaps I could appeal to them. I could say—and it's true, Tom—that this was partly a business conference and therefore it would hurt you at the office if you didn't put it through. That would apply to Mr. Statlander and Mr. DeVos. You do have to talk to them, don't you? I could appeal to Marvin—if I could get him alone—"

Her husband's face hardened but Linda hurried ahead: "I'd ask him as an old friend to stand by me because you had to be occupied a good deal with business. As for Mr. Shaughnessey—well, he's a sponge, anyhow. A graceful charming sponge, but the sort that's all for himself and probably has planned to spend a week or so in our garage at our expense. He won't need to be coaxed."

"That sounds plausible," Tom considered it while she anxiously studied his face. Would he agree? No, he wouldn't—yes, he might—no! "But Binks, it just wouldn't work. Put yourself in their places—considering this desperate suggestion.

"Talk to each one separately and notice how they answer, as well as what they say. They'll talk about the accident perfectly naturally with us. We can ask leading questions without seeming to and then meet and analyze what we've found out and go back and talk with them more. Oh, Tom, don't you see it's the only way? The one who did it is sure to give himself away by some perfectly unconscious slip. But it needs time—and so they simply mustn't go, they mustn't!"

He sat thoughtfully a long moment and then Linda dared press her advantage.

"What else could we do, Tom?"

He nodded slowly.

"I see that, all right. It's a crazy stunt—but it's that or nothing."

She cut in eagerly. "Then let's go right away, Tom, and find them. I'm ready—" She stood up quickly.

"Now wait, Binks. Don't be in too much of a hurry."

ALTHOUGH she knew of old that his common sense decisions were slower but also more thorough than her quicker impulses, his caution infuriated her, so highly was she keyed for action.

"Tom! It's 11 o'clock. In an hour—"

"In an hour they'll be gone for good, especially if we fumble it. I want to think how to go about this. First we must persuade them to stay, then get together for our first conference and decide on the story of what happened to you—"

"That's easy," she interrupted. "I fainted—"

"Not so easy as that. Remember, one of them knows."

"Yes." Their eyes met.

"Binks," said Tom quietly, "I shouldn't consider this for one moment."

"But you've agreed to it!"

"Yes. But I'm going to make one condition."

"What's that?"

"The agreement is dissolved at any moment if I think I'm justified. Think, dearest," as she began to protest, "you haven't really taken in yet what it means. It means—" as he spoke his words seemed to reach her through some shell that had not been penetrated before; "it means that here, right in our house, there is a killer—a man without mercy and, possibly, insane. A homicidal maniac! And that sort is insane only until he kills. Then he's as cool and clever and as sane, or more so, than most of us. One of those four men—Pratt, Shaughnessey, Statlander, DeVos—is certainly a murderer and may be a homicidal maniac. Do you take it in now?"

"Yes," she answered in a whisper.

"And you don't want to call the police and have them all questioned?"

"No." Again the faintest breath of sound. Then, more strongly, as he paused, perplexed, "It wouldn't do any good, Tom. That—that sort of man would get away. We mustn't alarm him—"

"But you know we are doing a risky—a crazy—thing. That either of us—you or I—may be—"

"Stop!" She put her hand over his mouth. "I can't hear you say that, Tom! I know—I realize—now. But we must—wait! Today's Saturday. We'll find some way to keep them until Monday morning. That, you see, will give us the rest of today and all tomorrow—Sunday. Everything we find or guess or even imagine we'll report to each other. We'll get something, I know that, Tom. But I promise this. If by, say, after dinner tomorrow night, we haven't a thing, not a ghost of an idea, or anything stronger, you can do whatever you want—call up Tim Hanahan or go get him or—"

"Him!" Tom was contemptuous of the local policeman's aid. "Binks, to capture a man like this you'll need a squad—and then watch every move you make!"

"That's for you to take care of. Whom to call and how to do it. Whether we locate him or whether we give it up and call for help, that's your job, Tom—to bring it off. My job's to keep them here and happy and unsuspicious."

"And we're both to find out what we can—if we can."

"And compare notes. Often!"

"Agreed!"

THEY shook hands on it solemnly. And there came a tap at the door.

Rosie stood on the threshold and her eyes were troubled.

"Please sir," she said, "it's Tim Hanahan. He's very urgent, sir. He says he must see you at once, sir—and Madame, too, if she's able—which I told him she was not." Rosie spoke with a sudden access of asperity that suggested her tone to the young village policeman who had the misfortune—so far as authority in that household went—to have married Rosie's sister Tessie, her predecessor in the Averills' service.

There was conscious guilt in the glances the two conspirators exchanged, but Linda quickly covered her surprise.

"Certainly I'm able, Rosie—though thank you for trying to save me the bother. Will Tim come up here?"

Again Rosie tossed her head, but she was reluctantly compelled to pass on the commands of the law.

"He will not, ma'am. He says, will the master be so good as to step downstairs at once, and if you cannot come too, then he will come up later. And already he has made so free as to use the tilliphone without asking your permission and has called Dr. Parsons. I heard him give the number and well I know it meself."

Linda rallied first.

"Tell Tim we'll be right down, Rosie," she said almost sharply. "Both of us."

And as the girl hesitated she added, "I'm feeling quite myself now, thank you, Rosie. And we won't keep him waiting." The dismissal was definite and the girl moved off slowly. She was not going to hurry for brother-in-law Tim Hanahan.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

(Copyright 1932 by Douglas Malloch)

AT LEAST THIS MUCH

Now I give thanks for all the gain
The year has brought, of gold or grain.
Whatever wealth I hoped to win,
However small the gain has been,
Now I give thanks that I have won
At least this much, the harvest done.

If loss, not gain, my life has known,
Now I give thanks for what I own.
However I am dispossessed,
Am glad I did not lose the rest,
Am grateful for, though much bereft,
At least this much, for what is left.

But, if the blow so heavy fall
That I have nothing left at all,
Now I give thanks for something still,
For life and courage, faith and will,
A hope disaster could not touch—
For man must have at least this much.

Quotations

We can absorb and take care of 3,000,000 unemployed; even, after a fashion, 10,000,000. We have been doing it, so far. But if the number continues to grow and we are obliged to meet the increased demands upon us with steadily decreasing appropriations, this depression is going to have a much more serious effect upon public health than has yet been reflected in sickness and mortality statistics.
—Dr. Carl E. Buck, field director of the American Public Health Association.

The truth is, too many of the missionaries today are too small for the situation. I have heard them criticized in the bitterest terms, and agreed. I have seen them narrow, arrogant, sure and stupid in their own belief, and disdainful of a great culture. I have seen them scornful, vulgar, ignorant and superstitious, and I have seen them making over Chinese converts in their own image.
—Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, author.

Editor's Mother Dies at St. Ignace

Mrs. Nels Chatelle, 71, of St. Ignace, mother of Edward Chatelle, editor of the Republican News, of that city, and a close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Bourke of this city, whom she visited often, passed away Wednesday morning at St. Ignace.

Mr. and Mrs. Bourke, who received the message of her death, are leaving today for St. Ignace. Funeral arrangements have not been definitely made.

Mrs. Chatelle, who was known to many Escanaba people through her visits here at the Bourke home, is survived by one son and two daughters, Mr. Chatelle passed away four years ago.

Miss Boudah Entertains

Miss Irene Boudah was hostess at a bridge party given at her home Sunday evening. Those present were Ned and Don Kent, "Bub" Rice, Bernie Rupp, Misses June Young, Mary Jeane and Helen Boudah. Two tables of bridge were played, high honors going to Miss Ewald, second high to Mr. Rice. Later on a delicious lunch was served.

Personals

Mrs. William J. Miller was called to Marquette on Saturday on account of the condition of her son Jack, who developed complications following the extraction of a tooth.

Rauson Blades and his sister, Mrs. Vina McNabb, of Seattle, Wash. arrived Monday by motor to visit for several weeks with their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bannister, and also with their nieces, Mrs. Henry Ross, Mrs. E. D. Flnske of Escanaba, and a nephew, Ira Bannister.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mosier of Detroit are visiting for two weeks at the home of Mrs. Louise Mosier.

T. C. Ewald and son Todd, of the Soo, will spend the holiday week-end at their home here.

The following students at the several colleges will arrive today to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with their respective parents: Miss Linnea Peterson, Lawrence University, Appleton, with Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Peterson; Howard LaBumbard, County Normal, Escanaba, with Mr. and Mrs. R. LaBumbard; Raymond Gravelle, County Normal, with Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Gravelle; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller, Robert Miller, and Miss Elizabeth Miller, Northern State Teachers College, Marquette, with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Miller; Lloyd Belland, Michigan Tech, Houghton, with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Belland.

Supt. H. A. Nelson left Wednesday afternoon for Ogema, Wis., where he will spend the Thanksgiving holidays with his parents.

The Southern Pine association at New Orleans reported that 117 lumber mills in Louisiana shipped 37.22 percent more lumber than they produced the week of October 15.

Secretary Heath Of Marquette C-C Resigns Position

Marquette.—Directors of the Marquette Chamber of Commerce, at a regular meeting Monday, accepted the resignation of Secretary-Manager Frank H. Heath, effective March 1, 1933, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Heath, who has been in charge of Chamber operations in Marquette since April 1, 1930, informed the board of directors he had plans in view which contemplated a change of residence to Milwaukee in the spring.

"Economic conditions are such that it is going to be with some difficulty that the Marquette Chamber of Commerce can carry on next year as effectively as in the past two and a half years and I believe if the organization is to function, it will have to be on a materially revised basis," said Mr. Heath.

To Help Plan Program

"I shall be very glad to start the 1933 program along whatever lines the board of directors decide upon and by March 1 an effective program should be well under way."

Arrangements were made by the board of directors to have Mr. Heath remain in charge of the Chamber work until early spring. A pronounced slash in operating expenses will feature the program after December 15, this step made necessary by economic conditions.

Hudson Expresses Regret

"The directors received Mr. Heath's statement with much regret," said President E. J. Hudson. "We were pleased to be able to negotiate for his services until March 1. His work as secretary-manager has been satisfactory to the directors and I feel that his tenure of office has been featured by many splendid results, in every way of benefit to our city and community."

President Hudson announced the appointment of Claton Frei, Phil Rose, P. B. Spear, Jr., W. J. Saari and Mrs. T. Gilley as a nominating committee for the 1933 board of directors. The present directors, by resolution, requested the nominating committee to include at least eight members of the Better Business bureau on the list of nominations to be made.

The election of directors will be along the same lines as prevailed last year, members being permitted to cast their ballots by mail as well as in person. The exact date of the election will be announced next week.

THEN THEY'LL BE BACK

"Have you any children, Mr. Smith?"

"Yes—three daughters."

"Do they live at home with you?"

"Not one of them—they're not married yet."—Frankfurter Illustrierte.

THEATRES

Five members of the original cast of the Pacific Coast stage production of the hilarious Hollywood satire, "Once in a Lifetime," are appearing in Universal's screen production of the play, which is at the Delft Theatre and is the great movie laugh of the year.

First of all, there is Aline MacMahon, who originated the role of May Daniels in the Los Angeles and west coast company. It is a rather strange thing, too, that Miss MacMahon was the first actress chosen for the role. She played it in the engagements before the play came into New York. She also played it for two months in New York while Jane Dixon was out of the cast.

The second is Russell Hopton, who originated the role of Jerry Hyland in the west coast company and third, Gregory Gaye, who played the role of the moving picture director, Kemmerling. The other two are Frank LaRue, who played the Bishop, and George Ford. He played one of the Schlepkin brothers in the original cast, and the Schlepkin brothers are one of the very few deletions that the producers of "Once in a Lifetime" felt that it would be politic to make.

Peninsula Pioneer In Mining Dies at Home in Wakefield

William John Davies, pioneer Wakefield mining man, the father of H. I. Davies of Escanaba, died suddenly at his home Monday afternoon at 1:10 after a brief illness.

Mr. Davies complained of not feeling well after the noon day meal, and retired to his room. Mrs. Davies, alarmed at his condition, called a physician, but he passed away a short time later.

Mr. Davies was born April 8, 1861, at Rockland and married Miss Jerusha Jewell on December 28, 1887. The family moved to Wakefield in September, 1906. Mr. Davies served as superintendent for the Pickands-Mather company at the Mikado, Brotherton and Sunday Lake Mines until he retired in January, 1929. He took an active part in community affairs. He served as a supervisor of Wakefield township before organization of the city and was a member of the Wakefield school board. He was one of the organizers of the Union church, acted as trustee of the church and was the superintendent of its Sunday school.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters and two sons: Mrs. H. M. Erickson, Ironwood, Mrs. H. W. Johnson, Wakefield, Henry I. of this city and Thoburn of Wakefield. Two brothers and four sisters also survive.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies of this city, left immediately for Wakefield, following word of his death.

Kryl Band Plays At Iron Mountain

The leonine-headed Bohumir Kryl, the celebrated band master, who will appear Nov. 25 at the Iron Mountain high school with his great band, is one of the most picturesque characters in the musical world.

The career of Bohumir Kryl reads like a chapter from almost unbelievable fiction. At the early age of twelve, Mr. Kryl began his career of public entertainment, in the Winter Gardens of Berlin, and has been an outstanding personality from that day to this.

When he was thirteen, Kryl worked his way to America by means of his violin. He is master of numerous instruments, but confines his playing at present to the cornet. With this instrument he does the impossible—playing two octaves lower than any other living cornetist. He plays with a certain contempt for the difficulties that often defeat other musicians.

Kryl scorns defeat in any line of endeavor. Aside from his mastery of music, he has attained distinction in the arts of sculpture and painting. He has also established himself as an able business man, having been president of a large bank in the Chicago area.

Kryl owns one of the greatest private painting collections in the country.

Kryl is the father of two beautiful daughters and is the grandfather of three lovely children. One daughter married Paul Taylor White, composer and director of the Rochester, N. Y. Civic Symphony Orchestra. Kryl's daughters, Marie and Josy, one an accomplished pianiste and the other violiniste, toured Europe and America in recitals.

Teachers Take Part in Club's Education Day

A program, which for excellence of entertainment and instructive value left nothing to be desired, was presented Wednesday afternoon by the Escanaba Junior high school before members of the Escanaba Woman's club at their regular meeting. Education Day was the special observance of the meeting.

The program, arranged by teachers of the departments, was preceded by a two-hour visiting period during which members of the club visited the various classes. It began promptly at 3 o'clock, and was presented by the departments of Music, Art, Physical Education and Declamation and closed with a clever play.

The opening demonstration, that of the Music department, included two numbers by the Escanaba Junior high school orchestra, well played, under the direction of R. P. Bowers, and selections by the Junior high school Boys' Glee club, directed by Miss Ruth Sundwick. The club sang with excellent taste and appeared to good effect in their white outfits with monogrammed blazers.

The Art demonstration, presented under the direction of Miss Lois Gaut, was most unique and drew favorable comment from every member of the club. It included a design for a silver bracelet, leather work, decorating a box with gesso, clay work, beautiful batik work, block painting, and crayonex work. Each problem was worked out by the pupils demonstrating, step by step in order that the audience might easily follow the work and understand its procedure.

In the gymnasium demonstration the senior girls presented some clever and entertaining tap dancing, Miss Elaine McDermand directing. The girls were perfectly graduated as to height and their costumes were very fetching, with colored lights adding to the effectiveness of the scene. The Lindy Lee, the second dance of the eccentric type, the third a patter dance for which the girls were costumed in black and yellow which was heightened by a violet light, the fourth, with its clever "hoyden" features, and the fifth, a military number, presented by a group in red and white costumes with jaunty caps and reversible capes, were all excellent, bringing out spontaneous applause.

The declamation, "Being an Uncle," given by William Cramer, under the direction of Joseph Shipman, was well given, its humor dealing with the precocity in modern children.

The play, "Alice in Ireland," directed by Miss Margaret Dwyer, which closed the program, was a pleasing arrangement of singing, dancing and dialogue, which was well received.

The entire program was excellent, a particularly worthwhile presentation of the special work involved in the high school curriculum.

Judge J. P. Carley, Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeRosbey, sons, James and Stanley, and daughter, Jeanne, arrived last evening to attend the funeral services for Miss Jane Moras, which will be held Friday morning.

Tuberculosis Is Enemy of Child, Records Show

One simple fact, that tuberculosis is a disease of childhood, and that as such it caused the death of 453 Michigan children last year is being held before the public now by the Michigan Tuberculosis association on the eve of the annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals.

Pamphlets, window cards, billboard posters and letters accompanying the shipments of seals impress the mind with the enormity of the tuberculosis total death score among children compared with that of the next four diseases in point of deadliness.

Whooping cough was responsible for 183 deaths among children; diphtheria with 151; scarlet fever 94, and measles 22, a total of 450 while tuberculosis, the association points out, working single handed took three more little lives than these commonly recognized foes of childhood working all together.

Early discovery of the disease is the only present day method available to check it and prevent the suffering caused by so many unnecessary deaths. The Michigan Tuberculosis association wishes to carry its program of tuberculin tests and X-ray examinations to every school child in the state.

Requests covering the examination of 44,000 children have already been filed by school superintendents in the office of the association at Lansing. Having the public fully aroused to the real character of tuberculosis as childhood's greatest enemy is the one factor necessary to carry on this work, T. J. Werle, executive secretary of the association, declares.

Billboards call the attention of those who travel the main highways and city thoroughfares of Delta county to the importance of tuberculosis as a disease of childhood which must be stamped out.

FAIR REPORTS $2,482 DEFICIT

Secretary Harvey Issues Statement for Board Of Managers

The Upper Peninsula State Fair of 1932 suffered a net loss of $2,482 as of Nov. 15, according to a statement of income and expense presented by Secretary George E. Harvey to the board of fair managers. The total income was listed as $44,868.27, and the total expense as $47,350.27.

In analyzing these figures, Secretary Harvey makes the following report to the board of managers:

"You will note that the net loss for the 1932 fair is $2,482. I wish to explain this figure by calling your attention to the fact that when we met in annual session last November, certain amounts were set up to be expended for various departments. After our contracts had been made for the entertainment and the premium list decided upon on a $35,000 appropriation, the legislature met and saw fit to reduce the appropriation by $5,000. Our expenses were based on the larger appropriation. We also figured $1200 income from automobile licenses, which fell short.

"Prior to the fair it became necessary for us to spend $410 for toilet facilities in the cattle barn. It was also necessary to erect high fences between the grandstand and bleachers, and west of the bleachers, and build up underneath the grandstand to prevent people from coming through. We also had the arrangements in the cattle barn changed, so as to house more cattle, and also provided quarters for the exhibitors' helpers, which saved us $158 in tent rental, and which is also a saving for future years.

"We secured the tie bars in the large cattle barn with bolts, which prevents the animals from pulling the partitions apart, as was done in the past. We moved the old grandstand ticket office and located it in the vicinity of the cattle section to be used as an office for the superintendents of the various departments, which gave them more privacy for their records. We also improved the horseshoe pitching courts, and elevated the barbed wire fence. In addition to the above expenditures, during the winter months, we made up our premium list, and after this was printed, we got a further reduction in our appropriations from the special session of the legislature. At the meeting in July, of the board of managers, the admission was reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, and Monday was decided upon as a free day. This, together with a rainstorm on Wednesday night, when he had to return the paid admissions, and in addition to bad weather on two days, together with the unemployment condition, reduced our income."

Licenses For New Cars Due; Regular Sale Starts Dec. 1

Although the Michigan department of state announced recently that newly-purchased automobiles and trucks would be allowed to operate on 1933 licenses beginning with Nov. 19, no supplies of 1933 plates have been received by any of the branch agencies in the peninsula as yet. The early date for issuing next year's licenses was designed to encourage purchases of new models, and owners of cars bought during the last two weeks of November were given the privilege of using their new automobiles at once, without buying 1932 plates.

The regular sale of 1933 licenses is scheduled to start Dec. 1. Low numbers will be the rule this year, and already the branch department of state agency in the state fair office at Escanaba has received advance requests for most of the numbers of two digits, in addition to many others chosen to coincide with the owner's telephone number.

Eye Defects Show Need of Field Test in Giving Drivers Licenses

By ERNEST A. HUTCHINSON, Chairman, Department of Physics-Optics, University of Southern California.

Los Angeles, Nov. 23. (AP)—A discovery at the University of Southern California that tobacco smoking seems to increase the sensitivity of eyesight to red and green colors calls attention to the importance of determining whether you have "periscopic" or "telescopic" vision.

The correct answer to this question will determine whether you are a good or bad risk for accident insurance.

Normally, a person should be able to look straight ahead and yet be aware of the existence of small objects on either side of him, or even slightly behind him, if the object contrasts sufficiently with its background and the more easily if some movement be imparted to the object.

Are You "Wide Angle?"

Studies of the extent of the visual fields for colors indicates in the normal eye a field for blue almost as large as that for white. The field for green is the smallest, red being intermediate between blue and green.

Tests seem to indicate an increased sensitivity to green and red as a result of tobacco smoking. This is manifested by enlarged fields for these colors, more pronounced for the green than for the red and accentuated in the case of excessive smoking.

"Wide angle" or periscopic vision is most important in keeping us informed as to what is going on around us. It is of the utmost value to the automobile driver in that it enables him to watch intently the road ahead of him and yet he keenly alert to the approach of other vehicles on either side. It is equally indispensible to the machinist, the structural steel worker and to many others in this age of high speed and rapid transit.

Small Vision Area

Singularly a narrowly restricted tubular field may exist with central vision of a high order. Conversely a person with very poor vision on the test chart may be keenly sensitive to the presence and especially so to the movement, of objects in the marginal field.

From the standpoint of "form" vision, reading, etc., the peripheral retina is decidedly inferior to the central or macular area. The latter is a small "spot," near the center of the retina, measuring only about one tenth of an inch in diameter. To this small space is confined keen analytical vision such as is required for reading and other work demanding fine discrimination. Outside of this area vision for letters and fine detail falls off quite rapidly.

Few people realize how very small is this area of distinct vision; at ten inches distance the immobile eye can see distinctly a space about the size of a 25 cent piece or one word of medium length in ordinary newspaper type.

Imaginary Scenery

When we go to the mountains or aloft in an aeroplane we imagine we see a wide expanse of terrain spread out before us, which is true in a sense, but how very little of it we see clearly at any given moment: It is because the eye is continually moving and that we retain visual impressions in our minds that we are able to enjoy the landscape and delude ourselves into thinking that we can take in so much territory. Thus we see there is an aesthetic as well as a practical aspect to "periscopic" vision.

Now there are conditions which very materially restrict the field of vision. When it is confined to the central sensitive area it is known as tubular or telescopic vision. The person with this visual defect is unsafe as an automobile driver, even as a pedestrian he is in considerable personal danger. Fortunately tele-scopic or tubular fields are relatively rare although taken in conjunction with other field defects they lead some authorities to believe that visual tests for drivers licenses might well include field tests.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM KAMPINEN

A large assemblage of friends and relatives gathered at the Finnish Lutheran church in Rock at 2 p. m. Wednesday for the funeral of Mrs. William Kampinen. The Rev. Otto Kaarto of Negaunee officiated, and burial was in the cemetery at Rock. The pallbearers were: Martin Kampinen, Frank Salmi, Waino Viltala, Emil Hill, Emil Johnson, Arthur Asiala.

FILIBERT BEAUCHAMP

The body of Filibert Beauchamp, who died Tuesday morning, was removed from the Allo funeral home to the family home at 520 North 18th street. Funeral services will be held Friday at 9 a. m. at St. Anne's church. Burial will be in St. Anne's cemetery. Msgr. R. C. Jacques will officiate at the last rites.

MISS JANE MORAS

Funeral services for Miss Jane Moras, 46, who died in Detroit on Sunday, will be held at St. Joseph's church 9 o'clock Friday morning, with Rev. Fr. Edward Leary officiating. Burial will be in St. Joseph cemetery.

The body arrived from Detroit yesterday and was taken to the home of a brother, William Moras, 907 South Tenth street. Accompanying the body from Detroit was a sister, Mrs. W. C. Ford. Other relatives who have already come here to attend the services are the brother, Louis Moras of Rhinelander, and a sister, Mrs. Frank DeRoshey, Iron River.

Grow 12,350 Bushels Of Certified Seed

Figures have just been obtained that show that 12,350 bushels of certified potatoes were produced in Menominee county during the past summer. 11,575 bushels are of the Russet Rural variety and 775 bushels are Irish Cobblers. Most of this seed will be sold to potato growers in Southern Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Following is the list of growers who produced this seed: Walter Wangerin, Frank Thoune, James Domion, J. M. Kronsnoble, George Stefansky, A. P. Kline, Abel Kovach and Albert Kipfer of Stephenson; Ed Miller, and Julius Hoglund of Daggett; Wickman Bros., Carney; and D. H. Campbell, Wilson.

Certified seed is pure seed that comes from known ancestry and has had the disease carefully rogued out so that not more than 1 per cent contains disease. Ordinary fields of potatoes will run anywhere from 10 per cent to 100 per cent diseased tubers, and of course these will not produce maximum yields.

The new Manchurian government has placed a ban on child marriages.

Red Cross Work

McMillan, Mich. (Special)—In spite of the stormy weather a number of the local ladies assembled in the sewing room of the Lincoln school on Monday afternoon for the purpose of cutting and sewing garments from cloth supplied by the Newberry Chapter of the Red Cross. In charge of the Red Cross work being carried on in Columbus township are Mrs. N. K. Zeigler and Mrs. Amos Thompson. The next meeting will be held on the afternoon of Thursday, December 1, beginning at 1 o'clock. Every woman is urged to attend the meetings and to bring thimbles and shears.

Church Events

Rev. Alvin Doten of Newberry conducted church services in the McMillan circuit Sunday and will be with us again on the evening of Sunday December 4.

Epworth League

Senior and Junior members of the Epworth League society of the First Methodist Episcopal church will meet in the church parlors on Sunday evening, Nov. 27, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Bert Koontz will act as leader.

Sunday School

Sunday school will be held in the M. E. church Sunday morning beginning at 10:30 o'clock with president of the Sunday school, Mr. Glenn Shady of Newberry presiding.

Personal Items

Mr. William Ervin who has been visiting here the past week with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vining left by motor Monday for his home in Pontiac. Mr. Ervin shot his buck Sunday afternoon. Other guests at the Vining home the past week were Mr. Vining's nephew, Mr. Harold Kelly and friend Mr. Lee Dibble, both of Marlette.

After spending the past three months in Followville, Mich. as the guest of his sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Miller, Mr. Samuel Braley arrived home Monday.

The second load of perch arrived here Saturday afternoon from the Fish Division of the Conservation Department and were planted in Dead Man's Lake, north of McMillan.

Mrs. N. K. Zeigler and father-in-law spent Sunday with friends and relatives at the Kenzington Lodge near Hulbert.

Messrs S. E. Dinsmore and John Monk left Monday for their respective homes in Detroit following a week's hunting vacation here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Thompson at their cabin on Tahquamenon river.

Mr. William Hunter of Detroit arrived in town Saturday and was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hanger a few days before leaving for his hunting camp where he will remain until the close of the hunting season.

Arriving from Gladwin Saturday Mr. Joseph Schultz will be a guest at the Henry Heidebreicht home. Mr. Schultz intends to do some hunting north of here during the remaining days of the season.

Edward Hanes of Bay City is the guest this week of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edmonds and his brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hanes and family.

Mrs. T. L. Collins, Miss Bessie Riskey, Mrs. N. K. Zeigler, Mr. and Mrs. George Roat, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sargent and daughter Amy, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Vardon attended the annual bazaar sponsored by the Germfask community club and held in Germfask Saturday evening.

Students of the East Lake school under the direction of their teacher Mrs. R. S. Ruggles will sponsor a dancing party to be held in the East Lake school on Nov. 25. A program of various dances has been arranged by the committee in charge. An invitation is extended to the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smathers and guests Miss Marguerite Barber and Mr. Emory Bryers of Newberry attended the hunters ball given Saturday night at the Decker hall in Germfask.

Among those from outside of Luce county who have secured deer hunting licenses here this season are: Roy Shawdy, Berry Co.; Arthur Cheyne, Kent Co.; Roy Lamothe, William Hunter, Pascal C. Payne, E. J. Boersig, John S. Warner, Roy Kinnell of Wayne Co.; Arthur Easlick, Gratiot Co.; Willard H. Landis, Berry Co.; Floyd Cheyne, Ottawa Co.; Vern Vincent, Floyd Vincent and Alvin Vincent, Sanilac Co.; William Foreman, Claude Whitmer, Bert Auten, Jesse C. Misses Harriet LaFond and Helen Dorey and Ernest Johnson attended the bazaar in Germfask Saturday evening.

Alfred Erickson has resumed his work on the McMillan section of the D. S. S. and A. railroad after a week's hunting vacation spent at the Swanson camp on the Tahquamenon river.

The spreading of rails caused a seven hundred class engine to leave the track near the George Michelin mill here Monday night. The wrecker was called from Marquette and with the help of the section crew and a number of extra men they had the engine back on the tracks early Tuesday morning.

Rev. C. T. Smith is confined to his home here this week by illness.

Conductor Farley Claimed by Death

William Farley, 63, Ashland, Wis., a veteran Chicago and North Western railway conductor and at one time employed on the Peninsula division, died Sunday night in a hospital in that city after being ill six days.

Funeral services were held at the Farley home in Ashland yesterday with the Rev. Peter Volz officiating. Burial was in St. Agnes cemetery.

Mr. Farley came to this country from Canada as a young man and entered railroad service on the Peninsula division in Michigan. After a number of years, he was transferred to the Lake Shore, now the Ashland, division and moved to Ashland in 1893, making his home there since. He is survived by two daughters, Viola of Ashland, Mrs. James Gay of Highbridge; one sister, Mrs. Mary Mellon of Seattle, and four brothers, James of Marshfield, John of Crystal Falls, Dave of Amasa, and Robert of Fond du Lac.

Asks Bus Franchise

Sault Ste. Marie—Stanley S. Smith appeared before the city commission last night to ask for a franchise for the exclusive rights to operate busses on the streets of Sault Ste. Marie. The franchise, which was opposed by Commissioner George J. Laundy, was given its first reading and after being amended will be brought up at the next meeting.

Commissioner Laundy declared that Smith should pay for the privilege of operating the busses here. Smith asked for a 10-year franchise and the option of having it renewed.

Galsters Lucky

Ontonagon—John L. A. Galster, of Petoskey, head of the Galster hunting club, and his party of about 20 men, all residents of lower Michigan, will break camp Wednesday and leave for their homes after their annual deer hunt in Ontonagon county. The Galster club has been coming to this county every fall for several years. Two years ago they established a new camp about 10 miles from Ontonagon on the Norwich road after abandoning their old quarters at the Nonesuch mine location near the Porcupine mountains.

Hunted 40 Years

Ishpeming—Alfred Johnson, Cleveland avenue barber, this season is missing his first annual deer hunt in 40 years.

Asked how many deer he has shot in the 40 years or more he has been hunting, he said: "I have shot 90 or more. There were not many seasons I did not get the limit under the law, and before the kill was regulated by law, I used to bring in several in a season. That was over 30 years ago when hunters were allowed to kill as many does or bucks, as they could get and then sell them at the markets. Deer hunting in those days was easy, and we did not have to go far for them.

GRIDIRON'S BEST PICKED BY TONY

Gladstone's Gatecrasher Names His All-Americans

Gate-crashing Tony Stambulich, Gladstone's emulator of the famous "One-Eyed" Connolly, has returned from his nation-wide trek, which included attendance at the more important games of the football season, in deference to Alton Kircher, Gladstone's contribution to Jim Crowley's great team at Michigan State. Tony wound up the season by watching the thrilling contest between Michigan State and the University of Detroit last Saturday.

Tony, upon his return, announced that he was now prepared to make his selections for the all-American squad. Most of the selections, he says, are made from personal knowledge of their prowess, but some were chosen because of the records that he learned had been made through newspaper accounts.

In submitting his selections Tony modestly denied any effort to encroach on the coaches, officials and other football authorities but stated that he merely wanted to compare his opinions with those of the more expert.

Oldest Democratic Legislator Here

Representative Martin R. Bradley, Hermansville, who is prominently mentioned as the next speaker of the Michigan legislature, spent yesterday afternoon in Gladstone calling on old friends. Mr. Bradley is the oldest democratic member of the legislature and has been endorsed for the speakership by leading Democrats of all sections of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Skoog, of Manistique were guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Smith. Mrs. Smith is a sister of Mrs. Skoog. Mrs. Erick Anderson, mother of Mrs. Skoog, who has been visiting for the past three weeks at the Skoog home, returned Sunday evening with them.

Kircher Arrives Home Tuesday

Alton Kircher, quarter back on Michigan State's team, arrived in Gladstone Tuesday night to spend Thanksgiving Day with his parents. Kircher made the trip by plane as far as Blaney Park, where the storm forced the ship to land.

In the party with Kircher were John K. Stack, Jr., recently elected auditor general of the state, and Gerald Cleary, Escanaba, who has spent a week in the lower peninsula.

DAY OF THANKS TO BE OBSERVED

All Churches to Hold Services of Thanksgiving Today

Thanksgiving Day will be fittingly observed today by all Gladstone churches. Programs will be held both morning and evening with the Scandinavian churches holding a united service in the morning at the Swedish Mission church, while the other churches of the city will hold individual services. In the evening a number of programs will be presented.

At the Methodist church the morning service will comprise a sermon by Rev. H. W. Colenso, his subject being "Thanksgiving." Two anthems will also be sung by the Junior choir. A novel offering of fruits, vegetables and money is to be taken at the door, the receipts from which will go to the relief of poor families of the city. No evenin gservice is to be held.

The union service in which the Swedish Mission, the First Baptist and First Lutheran churches will participate will be held at the First Baptist church. Rev. C. V. S. Engstrom of the Swedish Mission church delivering the sermon. Rev. C. E. Olsson, pastor of the First Lutheran church, and Rev. N. Werner Nelson, pastor of the First Baptist church, will also participate.

Evening programs are to be presented at the Swedish Mission and First Baptist churches. At the First Baptist church the program is to start at 7:30 and at the Swedish Mission at 8 o'clock. The folowing programs have been announced:

CITY MAKES NEW WELFARE RULING

No Grocery Orders for Car Drivers Is Order

No relief will be given by the city to persons operating cars, and license plates will be required to be turned over to the chief of police, according to a new ruling to be put into effect at once by the city welfare department. Announcement of the new restriction was made today by City Manager F. R. Buechner who said "Owing to the unusual demands and the necessity of conserving relief resources for the deserving, as against the undeserving, effective at once, no relief in the form of flour or groceries will be given to individuals who either operate trucks or cars, or who may be conveyed to the city hall in trucks or cars. License plates from cars owned by persons receiving aid will be required to be turned over to the chief of police. The obvious reason for this drastic action is to prevent the undeserving, who are making a racket out of the welfare service from getting relief."

Mr. Buecnner pointed out that the city has followed a policy of leniency until now because it was believed that the cars were needed for hauling wood and gardening purposes, to help themselves, which is impossible during the winter months.

The city welfare report for the month of October showed 132 families, or a total of 593 persons dependent upon the city for their living. A total of $1,279, was spent during October amounting to about $10 per family. The cost per meal has been brought down considerably lower than that of most cities, averaging about $.024 on a basis of ninety meals per month.

During September 573 persons were cared for at a cost of $1,308.57. The cost per meal during September was a trifle higher amounting to $.025.

A lower cost per meal has been possible because of the fact that the unemployed were required to plant gardens during the summer, and now how adequate supplies of potatoes and vegetables.

The first great burden of relief work was felt last April. Although there were considerable les families on the city welfare list then, totaling 74, they were dependent for every form of food, and even. A total of $1,028.74 was expended for April, 1932.

THEATRES

If what this country really needs is a great big laugh you can get your share of it at the Rialto Theatre, today and Friday in "Million Dollar Legs."

Not since the last riot created by the Four Marx Brothers, "Monkey Business," has this city seen such insane, hilarious buffoonery. There's neither rhyme nor reason to the picture. It's dizzy. It's wild. It's sheer nonsensical farce, but there's a howl in every line of it—and, frankly, the audience loves it.

Set against the background of the 1932 Olympic games the story purports to tell of the heroic achievements of a gallant little band of athletes from Klopstokia (which is located somewhere in the Polish corridor, just around the Austrian border). These boys run so fast that they trip over frightened rabbits and have to hurdle fleeing deer.

The blonde charmer, Mata Machree, is determined, for political reasons, that they shall not win and, using woman's age-old wiles, stacks the cards against them.

ROBBERS BLOW SOO LINE SAFE

Enter Freight Station Yesterday Morning; Loot Is $18.73

Safe blowers cracked the safe of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie freight station here sometime early this morning, obtaining the sum of $18.73 in cash. Debris caused by the explosion was scattered about the office yesterday morning pending the arrival of W. E. Irish, state finger print expert. No clues of the identity of the robbers were found, but local authorities are of the opinion that the job was done by outsiders.

The robbery was first noticed yesterday morning by William Roberts, Soo Line passenger agent when he went to the freight station to build a fire about 5:50 o'clock yesterday morning. He immediately notified the sheriff's department and Donald Hoadley, state trooper, made the investigation.

The front door of the safe was smashed to pieces by the blast, pieces of fire-proof clay from the safe littering the floor. The force of the blast blew the handle of the safe across the room, the missles marking a table across the room and puncturing a window. An empty cash box was found beneath a freight car at the entrance of the station and several roll-your-own cigarette butts were found on the floor in the office. Entrance to the office is thought to have been gained through prying a window. The warehouse was also ransacked, but nothing taken.

To all appearances no one heard the explosion. Night policeman, John Stephens, was in the vicinity at midnight, and employes of the Hiawatha hotel heard no noise up until they retired at 1 a. m.

CITY BRIEFS

Freeman Empson, student at Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis., is arriving Friday for a week-end visit at the home of his parents, Atty. and Mrs. G. R. Empson.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Strickler and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Marks, who have been guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Strickler, left Monday morning for their home in Battle Creek.

Trio Nabbed for Attempted Theft; Each Fined $10

Percy Luce, Gregor McGregor, and Vern Paquin, pleaded guilty to attempting to steal gasoline and each were fined $10 when arraigned in justice court yesterday morning upon the complaint of Donald Hoadley, state trooper.

The attempted theft was made on August 24 from Walter Bowman who at that time was operating his well drilling equipment at the site of the Pauly and Pauly cheese factory.

Each of the men were given a 30-day period in which to pay the fine and if not paid at the expiration of that time will be subject to a 15-day jail sentence. In giving the lenient sentence, Judge Stephens said that he was aware of the fact that the men were straightened circumstances and also were the means of support of dependents who were innocent of their act. He warned them severely against further depradations.

BRING OLD TOYS TO FIRE DEP'T

Firemen to Make Christmas Holidays Happy for Poor Youngsters

The big job of aiding Old Kris Kringle in his efforts to make Christmas a happy one for all of the less fortunate youngsters in Manistique will soon begin. Each year members of the Manistique fire department have made it their job to reconstruct old toys to make them look like new and with the aid of local welfare organizations have distributed them to the poor, thereby making what would otherwise be a dreary and sorrowful Christmas for hundreds of youngsters, cheerful and joyous.

The annual call for used and worn-out toys was made by Chief C. E. Underwood yesterday. This year more than ever before will youngsters need to have their stickings filled. Those who have discarded toys which are no longer of service, such as wagons, sleds, skils, tinker toys, humpty-dumpty sets, dolls, mechanical contrivances, etc., are urged to get in touch with the local fire department which will make arrangements for calling for them if it is too inconvenient to bring them.

With the aid of a few daubs of paint, a screw or a nail here and their, many old toys have been made to look like new. Wheels have been made and matched for wagons, steering aparatus fixed on sleds, dolls have been given new arms and legs, and a hundred other reparations have been made to put various kinds of playthings that kiddies will get an immense amount of enjoyment from in first class condition. Wooden toys are the easiest to fix, but any other playthings which are not beyond repair will be welcomed.

Paints, tools and other equipment are all ready to be used by the firemen in their spare moments, waiting for the resonse of local residents. In the past, the department has received fine cooperation and is again hoping for a generous assortment of toys for the benefit of children of indigent families.

Rubick to Lead M. H. S. Gridders

Sylvester Rubick, star left half back of the 1932 Manistique high school team, was elected to the captaincy of next year's grid team at a meeting by the football squad Monday noon. Orville Houghton, one of the defensive mainstays of this year's team, playing at the left guard position, was chosen as vice captain.

Rubick, after having been a backfield substitute two years ago, got his first real chance to show his wares this year. Next to Ekdahl, he was the most consistent ground gainer on the team. He is well-liked by his team mates and should prove a capable leader.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Stocks were spilled out of their rut by a moderate wash of selling today. Bonds, wheat and cotton also reacted, so the day before Thanksgiving saw a general letdown in financial markets.

Wall Street felt that the debt situation had been a cause of unsettlement, especially since the ultimate solution seemed obscure. There was no pressing amount of stock for sale and much of the decline occurred in the first hour when professionals were probably active, but the market, after more than three hours of dullness, underwent a further contraction of values in the late trading. Net losses to 1 in a 1 to 5 point range. Turnover increased to 1,201,515 shares, more than double yesterday's.

Rails tended to resist the early selling, their fairly steady tone being attributed to the better loadings statements issued by a few carriers, including New York Central. However, carrier issues alone were unable to hold up the list and they, too, weakened. Santa Fe and Union Pacific lost more than 3 net, while Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific yielded at least a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Nov. 23—Under the shadow of fresh liquidation of December wheat contracts, all grain values suffered downturns today.
War debt developments, together with new setbacks both in British exchange rates and New York stock market quotations, had a contributing bearish effect. Buying power was restricted because of tomorrow being a holiday, with all United States grain markets closed.
Wheat finished unsettled at almost the day's bottom, 7-8 to 1 1-8 net lower, corn ½ to 3-4 down, oats ½ to ½ off, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents decline.
Corn and oats sold off with wheat despite enlarged shipping demand here for corn.
Provisions reflected weakness of hog values and of grain.
Closing indemnities: Wheat, December 41 3-4 to 7-8, 43½; May, 46 5-8 to 3-4, 48 to 48 1-8; July, 47 3-4 to 7-8, 49¼ to 1-8. Corn—December, 28 1-8 to 1-2, 29 5-8; May, 28 7-8 to 29, 29 3-8; July, 31, offers.

A SMILING CAPONE SEEKS FREEDOM

Prison has not dimmed Al Capone's smile, as this photograph shows, although some of his corpulence and immaculate dress seems lacking. But he still has his body guard—this time government officers instead of henchmen. He was photographed as he left Atlanta federal court after seeking a writ by which he could get out of the Atlanta penitentiary.

HIAWATHA NEWS

Hiawatha, Mich. (Special)—Mr. Getsinger and Dr. Rutledge of Rogers City, Mich. have returned to their homes after spending a few days hunting at the home of A. L. Byers.

Mrs. Schuenmen of Chicago, the Christmas tree lady, was a caller at the home of Mrs. A. L. Byers one day this week and is gathering trees for her Chicago trade.

Mr. Jack Lafleur of Muskegon is spending a few days at the home of his brother Harry.

Little Dorothy Smith of Battle Creek, Mich. has arrived to spend the vacation months at the home of her aunt Mrs. Harry Lafleur.

Quite a few of the neighborhood young folks attended the Hunters Ball held at Steuben on Saturday night and reported that the school house was full to overflowing and that every one had a fine time.

Mrs. Harry Lafleur, Mrs. Gilbert Hyland and Miss Dorothy Smith were callers in Manistique on Friday.

Justin W. Byers, who has been spending the past several months at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Byers, has gone to Battle Creek for the winter.

Owing to the snow storm and on account of most of the grangers having hunters at their homes it was impossible for the members of Hiawatha Grange to go and help instal the officers of Buell Grange and we hope that it is so we can all go later.

NEW RACKET

Evansville, Ind.—A man and woman left a punch board in the store of Purbis Briner, Habelton, Ind. Fifteen minutes later a man entered and asked to play the board. On his first punch he got a number which entitled him to $15 worth of merchandise. As he walked out with the bundles, Briner became suspicious. He discovered that the couple had planted a marked board with him and that a friend had followed and punched the lucky number.

The saxophone was invented in 1840 by Adolphe Sax and introduced into the French army bands in 1845.

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—The bond market stumbled over foreign and domestic uncertainties today and prices generally drifted toward lower levels.

The foreign section, especially, was under pressure with losses in European and South American issues ranging from 1 to 9 or more points. In the domestic division semi-speculative loans were the principal sufferers.

At the same time highest grade investment bonds, including the United States government category, held to a steady position with a number recording fractional advances.

Activity was accelerated on the down-grade, sales totaling $7,881,000, par value. While this aggregate was still under normal, it was the largest since November 11. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate loans was off two-tenths of a point.

Softness of foreign bonds was generally attributed to the international financial situation. The British pound sterling and Belgian currency broke to new lows for the year in the foreign exchange market.

Curb Mart Stocks Travel Downward

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—After several days of fairly steady prices, stocks on the curb market turned downward today, although selling pressure was comparatively light. Transfers totaled about 130,000 shares against 110,000 yesterday.

The utilities bore the brunt of whatever liquidation was offered, although there appeared to be no great surprise over the weekly electric power production figures, made public today, which showed a slight gain over the preceding week, but still somewhat less than in the corresponding 1931 period.

In the specialty group, some fairly sharp movements appeared. Aluminum Co. was down more than 3. A. O. Smith was off more than 2. Singer Manufacturing was an exception, gaining more than 2 points in small turnover.

Deere & Co. yielded a point, in sympathy with the decline in wheat prices.

LINDA grasped Tom's arm as much for physical support as to whisper anxiously to him, "Tom—do they know?"

"It looks queer, Binks. Phoning for Parsons—"

"Was Tim here—before?"

"No. Parsons reported the accident. He tried the police station when he was hunting for Boyle, but he took it for granted it was an accident and of course so did Tim."

"Especially in our house."

"Yes. Tim's entirely too much one of the family—even if it's only by adoption—to suspect us of anything so ungenteel as murder."

"But something has happened!"

"Yes—something—"

"Well, come on, Tom. We won't find out this way."

"Be careful what you say, Binks. Let him do the talking."

She flashed him a glance of mingled scorn and agreement and together they went down the short hall, down the graceful winding stairs and into the central living room, still redolent of flowers and open to every passing whisper of air that might stir on that hot July day. Here, hat in hand, obviously embarrassed, perspiring apologetically in his official uniform, stood honest Tim Hanahan, dreading as much as they the approaching interview in which he must assume the position of authority.

They had hardly greeted him when there was a furious spurt of gravel from the roadway and the doctor's little roadster swung dangerously around the curving drive and came to a violent stop before their open door. From the roadster, as though catapulted by the arrested momentum of the car, shot the doctor himself, as red-faced as Tim and far more agitated.

"What's this—what's all this nonsense?" he burst out before he was fairly in the door.

University Warns Fraternities On Liquor Drinking

Ann Arbor, Mich., (AP)—Nathan S. Potter, fraternity alumnus, told the interfraternity council at University of Michigan tonight that fraternities face stern action by the university administration unless they voluntarily enforce rules prohibiting liquor in houses.

The council took no formal action, but members were urged to emphasize in their houses the necessity for observance of the rules.

It was believed that the stern action threatened meant closing of houses which are objects of complaints. Such fiction was taken in 1931 when police found liquor in five houses.

More than 9,000,000,000 cigarets are smoked each month in the United States.

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR THE FOOTBALL GAME BETWEEN THE JAIL BIRDS AND

Brown-Colgate Game Today Football 'Natural'

TROJANS ALSO ACTIVE TODAY

Cornell-Pennsylvania to Meet Again in Turkey Day Game

Providence, R. I., Nov. 23 (AP)—The Bruins of Brown and the Red Raiders of Colgate, undefeated contenders for eastern as well as national football honors, will wage their football "natural" tomorrow before a capacity crowd of 26,000.

Despite the possibility of rain, with a rise in temperature, the advance sale indicated the biggest turnout since these rivals met here in 1926. They celebrated the opening of the new Brown stadium that year by playing a 10-10 tie.

The Maroon's record of not having been scored on in eight games this season helped establish the visitors as 10 to 7 favorites in the betting.

Andy Kerr, smiling little Scotsman who teaches Colgate the Warner system, in reference to the prospect of a Rose Bowl invitation to the victor, said: "I think the winner will have a fine chance of figuring in the New Year's Day game. It looks like Brown, Colgate or Pittsburg, depending on what Pitt does against Stanford Saturday."

TURKEY DAY GAMES

Providence, R. I., Nov. 23 (AP)—There will be a much bigger crowd at Philadelphia for the Cornell-Pennsylvania battle and there will likely be no less spirited action on the gridirons of Seattle or Los Angeles, Birmingham or Knoxville, Shreveport or Lincoln, but Brown and Colgate will put on the main show of Thanksgiving Day football festival tomorrow.

For the first time in just about a quarter-century of keen rivalry, Colgate and Brown both come up to their five-star final performance neither defeated nor tied, each seeking a mythical claim to the eastern college championship for 1932 and each with an eye to the prospect of being invited to the Rose Bowl intersectional classic of New Year's Day.

The circumstances and the outcome will furnish plenty of appetizing debate around the holiday dinner tables, for these old rivals swing into action at 11 a. m., in keeping with an old New England custom and will finish their battle before the nation's other big games get under way.

Only a recurrence of the tie-game that gripped this series for three street years at one stretch can prevent either Colgate or Brown from sharing any of the season's gridiron honors in sight. They are among only a half dozen major teams neither beaten nor tied.

Coaches and experts from far and wide will gather in Providence tomorrow for the express purpose, not only of seeing two unbeaten teams meet for the high stakes, but to observe the intricacies of the Warner system as developed by two of the old master's most ardent coaching followers.

Meanwhile, on a day marked by the renewal of some of football's most ancient and colorful rivalries, champions will be put to the test in two other sections. Southern California's fast-traveling Trojans, who likely will defend their national title claims in the Rose Bowl, are favored to conquer Washington at Seattle. Nebraska's championship Big Six array should keep its conference record clear against Missouri.

Suspended Coach Sues for Breach Of His Contract

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 23. (AP)—Alleging breach of contract, Captain John J. McEwan, recently suspended as head football coach at Holy Cross, today asked the superior court to restrain the college trustees from interfering with the carrying out of his duties outlined in his contract with Holy Cross, which runs through the 1933 season.

In his equity bill, Captain McEwan asserted that the widespread publicity which resulted from his suspension had caused him great mental anguish and explained that the steps leading up to it resulted from interference with his football policies and an alleged refusal by the college authority to provide him with the equipment he deemed necessary for his football team. He informed the court his annual salary was $8,500.

Capacity Crowd for Army-Navy Battle

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 23 (AP)—Capt. J. W. Wilcox, Jr., director of athletics at the naval acadamy, announced today a "complete sell-out" of tickets for the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia December 3.

Prospective weather conditions and a general falling away of football crowds due to lowered business shows no effect on the public demand for tickets to the service game, a statement issued at the naval academy said.

Franklin Field stadium, where the game is to be played, seats 78,000 persons.

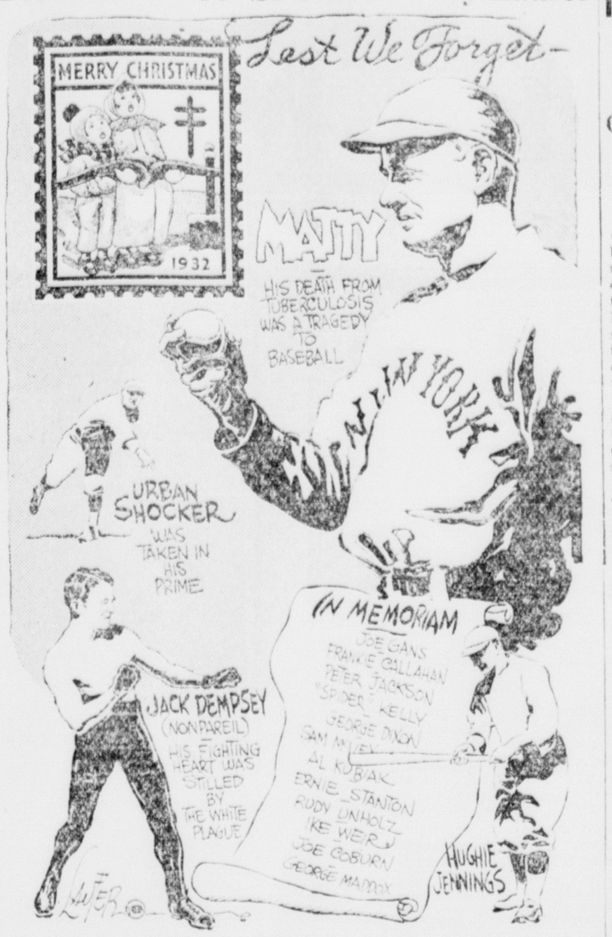
BRUSHING UP SPORTS By Laufer



Detroit Will Play Oregon State Today

Detroit, Nov. 23 (AP)—Outweighing the University of Detroit team many pounds to the man, the Oregon State college football machine will swing into action on Dinan field tomorrow to furnish the city's premier gridiron attraction.

Only one injury bothered the westerners tonight. That was the wrenched knee of right tackle Adolph Schwammel. It was announced that Schwammel would not be able to play tomorrow. The Oregon boys also seemed destined to fight their battle on a muddy field, only recently cleared of ice and snow.

The element of revenge has entered the rival camps. For Detroit it is an opportunity to erase the memory of the defeat of 1929 when Oregon ended the Titans' 20-game winning streak. Oregon State hopes to regain prestige lost in the defeat by Fordham last Saturday.

M. H. S. DEFEATS FACULTY 43-28

Green and White Squad Looks Impressive as 14 Get Into Game

Manistique, Mich., Nov. 23.—(Special)—Coach Wassberg's embryo 1932-33 basketball team romped over the faculty Tuesday evening, defeating them 43-28 in the first game of the season. Fourteen players on the high school squad were inserted into the lineup while the faculty uncovered ten men in their array of talent.

After Wassberg had popped in a short shot for the first counter of the game, the green and white quintet began to function in fine style against the best five the faculty could produce, and by the end of the first quarter Capt. Ekdahl's men led 16-4. The high school lineup during the 1st quarter saw Multhaupt and Garvin at the forward posts, Peasley at the pivot position, and Ekdahl and Dewey guards.

At the end of the quarter most of the high school starting lineup was withdrawn and the first string faculty members held the reserves on an even basis, the half ending 24-12 in favor of the green and white squad. Coach Wassberg proved to be the offensive star in the first half for the faculty, garnering five field goals, good for ten of the tutor's 12 points. Peasley sunk five baskets from difficult angles to lead the high school athletes.

The spectators were provided with the big thrill of the evening at the close of the first half and in the third quarter when the faculty inserted their Big Five composed of Wayne Martin, Preston Tanis, Russ Wilson, and Lauritz Drevdahl to relieve the much exhausted regulars. The quintet surprised the fans with their aggressive play, which at times was too aggressive and resulted in several fouls being called.

John Kelly, who failed to connect for a field goal in the first half, came back strong to count seven field goals and two free throws to score all of the faculty points in the second half. Barr, Multhaupt, and Norton, with two baskets apiece, led the second half attack for the students.

Despite the earliness of the season the Wassberg crew showed to good advantage and local prospects indicate that the team will be serious contenders for the conference flag.

In the preliminary the alumni girls defeated the senior girls 18-12 in a hard fought contest which required an extra period to decide the winner. The score at the end of the regulation game being 12 to 12.

Thorpe's Sure Toe Defeated Harvard

BY ART KRENZ

One of the greatest games Jim Thorpe ever played and one which old Pop Warner, present coach of Stanford, will always cherish, occurred on Nov. 11, 1911. On that day Carlisle, Warner's famous team of redskins, went east to play Harvard.

The Indian school was underrated in the east. Percy Haughton, late Harvard coach, thought so little of Warner's redskins that he started his second team, believing that his strategy would put the old inferiority complex on the Carlisle warriors.

But Warner matched strategy with strategy. He knew that the spectators, as well as Haughton, expected the great Thorpe to run with the ball. Instead of sending Jim on his long jaunts, Warner made him block and give the ball to other backs.

Early in the game Harvard pushed across a touchdown with its second string. They kicked the extra point and the score was 6-0. (A touchdown was five points then.) The Crimson relaxed a bit after this and, at a point where they were forced back to their own 13-yard line, Thorpe crossed them up by booting a place kick from a difficult position.

Again Carlisle carried the ball down the field behind Thorpe's interference. On the Harvard 43-yard line, Jim dropped back and booted another field goal, tying the score. Before the half ended he kicked the third, this time from the 37-yard line, putting Carlisle ahead by a score of 9-6.

Haughton started his second string again the second half. Carlisle, expecting the first squad, relaxed when they found the reserves in, and the Crimson managed to push across another touchdown and kick a field goal to take the lead, 15-9.

Thorpe then got peeved. He began to run with the ball in the manner of a wild bull headed for oats or hay. He ran 70 yards for a touchdown in nine plays and made the extra point, making the score 15 all.

Then Haughton rushed in his regulars, thinking to put his scoring punch in during the last quarter. But the regulars lost the ball in midfield, and Jim's big moment came.

Harvard held the Indians on its 48-yard line. It was fourth down, necessitating a kick. And following is how Thorpe tells about what he did:

"As long as I live I will never forget that moment. I was tired enough so that all my muscles were relaxed. I had confidence and wasn't worried. The ball came back square and true. With all the force and power I had I swung my leg and, as the ball left my toe, I knew it was headed for the crossbar and sure to go over."

It did, and Carlisle won the game 18-15.

ANDERSON SEES ARMY VICTORY

Notre Dame Coach Says Cadets Will Win Easily Sat'y

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 23 (AP)—Heartily "Hunk" Anderson, the noted optimist of Notre Dame football, reluctantly told his first big "bear" story tonight as a mild influenza attack swept five of his players from the playing field to the university infirmary.

"We'll be doing well to hold the Army to three touchdowns Saturday." Coach Anderson sighed after saying that George Melinkovich, Jim Harris, Dominic Vairo, Emmet Murphy, and Ray Boland were in the university infirmary suffering from mild flu attacks. "I have never told a bear story before but I mean this one. It looks like a bad day for us against the Army. When the Army beats Notre Dame, it does a great job."

Melinkovich Sickest

Unless their conditions grow worse, however, Coach Anderson said he planned to take all five of the sick men along with the team for the Army invasion, hoping that a train ride, change of scenery and a big Thanksgiving Day dinner will revive them for at least a period of play against the mighty cadets. Melinkovich, the only consistent ground gainer on the team, seemed to be the sickest of all with no signs of improvement. Harris, the first to contract the illness, was much improved after a good night's rest. Ed Kosky, regular left end, also has been suffering from a bad cold but insisted he was ready to play.

In a final scrimmage before their departure, the Ramblers polished up their passing attack tonight, figuring it was their one best scoring route against the enemy. The team will leave tomorrow noon.

"I don't know exactly how I will start against the Army," Hunk said sadly. "Last week, the second team scored both touchdowns against the Navy and looked better than the regulars, who didn't seem to have enough punch. So I think I may mix the starting lineup by starting half the first team and half of the second, possibly the first string line and the second string backfield."

Conservation Department Offers Use of $1,800,000, Work Relief

Lansing.—Declaring itself as favoring "work relief" rather than "dole relief" the Michigan Department of Conservation, at the request of the Committee for Trade Recovery has offered the use of $1,800,000 on construction work that would employ thousands of men.

The construction would include forest fire prevention, reforestation and state park work in 55 of the state's counties.

Of the $1,800,000 proposed to be spent, $1,417,216 would be labor compensation and $382,000 would be for equipment to be used in construction and maintenance on the various proposed projects.

Prepare for Future

"This unemployment relief project calling for the immediate employment of several thousand men would mean that for the first time in the history of Michigan, the state would be placed in a position to carry to completion many necessary tasks tending toward the wise rehabilitation and protection of its wild land resources," the resolution adopted by the Conservation Commission said.

The resolution pointed to the need for developing the recreational industry in the state and for preserving its natural resources; the need for an effective system of fire lines, for removal of fire menaces, for establishing and maintaining forest growth and for the building up of its system of public parks, game refuges and public hunting grounds.

$207,000 for Parks

The Commission pointed out that the expenditure of almost two million dollars might easily save the state many times that amount in fire fighting costs. During the year 1931 the Department of Conservation had to spend $1,100,000 in fighting forest fires. Had such prevention work as is now proposed been done prior to that time, possibly hundreds of thousands of dollars would have been saved to the taxpayers in that one year.

Under its proposal the Department of Conservation would spend $874,596 on forest fire prevention construction work; $335,620 in forestry work and $207,000 on state parks construction work.

It is proposed to obtain the funds through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Rolland Neff Lost In Woods All Night

Rolland Neff, 20 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Neff, walked out of the Barrett Slashing ten miles south of Newberry at 10:30 this morning after having spent the night in the woods. State police, conservation men and a large number of men from the Newberry state hospital and neighbors of the family had joined in the hunt but Rolland "found himself," coming out at Jocky Creek and walking to the Rebert's gas station. He had spent the night under a low-branched pine tree, he reports.

Young Neff together with Herman Carlson and Ren Depotty went hunting on Tuesday morning. Carlson got out all right but Depotty and Neff, separated and could not find the way out. Carlson located Depotty late last night.

At daybreak the search started for the remaining hunter. A bad blizzard raged all night but Neff appears none the worse for his experience. Depotty was located when Carlson saw the glow from his camp fire and found him just ready to settle down for the night.

CARELESS HUNTERS

Reports of careless hunters continue ot come in from the woods. One man tells of breaking his way through the brush and having a bullet whistle past his cheek. He looked up just in time to see a hunter aiming at him again. He dropped to the ground and shouted. The hunter came up, grinning. The man asked him what he meant by shooting at him and the hunter replied: "How was I to know that you were in the brush?

On Tuesday most of the nimrods remained in camp as a wet blizzard blew most of the day. Weather considerably warmer is sending the hunters to town to keep the deer for spoiling and many are leaving for home. A dozen or more cars, all with deer, left during the evening on Tuesday in spite of the storm. The hunters expected to reach St. Ignace during the night and cross on the first boat on Wednesday.

WOLVES ARE REPORTED PLENTIFUL

Ten wolves were reported to have been taken across the Straits in a press dispatch on Saturday. A half dozen more are known to have gone down since then. At least two Newberry men have been in parties whose members have killed wolves the last day or so.

Stanley Carlson, waiting on a trail for a buck being driven by other members of his party when he saw a dark form come through the brush. He was so excited that he almost forgot to shoot but recovered in time to put a bullet through its heart. Herman Carlson was with a group hunting near Melstrand when one of the party shot a wolf as it was making for him, the animal dropping almost at his feet.

TEACHERS PARTY A SUCCESS

Members of the Newberry school faculty and the board of education were the guests of the Newberry Study club on Tuesday evening. The party was started in the amusement hall of the state hospital where amusing games were played. The guests then went to the apartments of Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Campbell where a dainty lunch was served. A pleasant time is reported. The Study club, of which Mrs. Campbell is president, gives an annual party for the teachers.

MOTHERS MEETING

Around 175 mothers of children in the primary grades were the guests of the teachers in that department on Tuesday afternoon. First they attended classes from 1:15 until 2:00 and then went to the high school auditorium where a short program was presented. Joe Weber, a member of the high school orchestra played a fine instrumental number with Mrs. Bystrom as accompanist. Mrs. Truran and Mrs. Williams sang a beautiful number, Mrs. Walter Johnson playing for them.

Esther Ojala, principal of the grade school presided. She told the mothers that the invitation was given in order that teachers and mothers could better understand each other and work together for a better understanding and service to the child. Superintendent C. L. Bystrom spoke on the subject: "Who is the Exceptional Child" and Marjorie Morrill on "A Child's Friends in Books."

Following the program tea was served in the cafeteria, the home economics students of Linda Nicolai serving. A meeting for the mothers of the grade students will be given later.

Party Organized to Search for Hunter

A party was organized here yesterday to search for William J. Sullivan, brother of former Mayor Sullivan of this city, who was reported lost in the vicinity of the Sturgeon swamp. Last Tuesday afternoon Sullivan was talking to Hoy Snyder, several miles from the camp, on Lost Lake, where he was hunting. Sullivan was then on the edge of the Sturgeon swamp. Tuesday night he failed to return to camp and there was no response from rifle shots fired by companion hunters. Up to yesterday afternoon he had not been located. William Sullivan is familiar with the territory in Alger county and is an experienced woodsman and landlooker. It is believed, at this writing, that he may have decided to remain in the woods over night and that he will eventually find his way back, unless some accident has happened to him.

SOCIAL

The Munising Hospital Auxiliary members entertained at an afternoon tea Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. A. Vizena, Elm avenue, honoring Mrs. D. W. McDougall who leaves soon for Tulsa, Okla., where she will make her home. The rooms were prettily decorated in yellow chrysanthemums, Michigan holly and ferns. The table decorations were small yellow chrysanthemums and asparagus ferns and ivory tapers. Mrs. N. Lobb and Mrs. W. A. Monro served. Guests of the Auxiliary were Mrs. H. C. Pelton of Boston, Mrs. Mary Solan of DePere, Wis., and Miss E. A. Herd of Auburn, N. Y. The committee in charge of the affair was Mrs. W. A. Munro, Mrs. N. Lobb and Miss E. C. McNulty.

MUNISING BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vizena are spending Thanksgiving week with relatives at Manistique.

Miss Edna Pelissier is spending Thanksgiving week at Marquette.

Attorney George Bouchor of Los Angeles, Calif., arrived here yesterday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bouchor.

Members of the Knights of Pythias lodge will give a party and lunch to members of the order and their ladies Friday evening.

Thanksgiving services will be held today at the Methodist church, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. Special meeting in keeping with the day, and sermon by the pastor.

Dr. Baxter and Attorney O'Brien are back from a successful hunting trip at the O'Brien camp, near Grand Marais. Each killed a nice buck.

The members of the French lodge held a card party last Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Savoie. Twelve tables of five hundred and pedro were in play. Mrs. Peter Flavin had high score in five hundred, and Alcide Passanault, Jr., and Mrs. O. Raymond and Mitchell St. Martin being the other winners. In pedro, Mrs. W. LaFave won high and other winners were Mrs. A. Goudreau, Mrs. Henry Gariepy and Xavier Darais, Sr. Lunch was served after the games.

Cutter Escanaba Put In Commission

Bay City, Mich., Nov. 23 (AP)—The U. S. cutter Escanaba was commissioned a unit of the coast guard's Great Lakes fleet today with brief but impressive ceremonies.

The Escanaba, a new type of coast guard vessel, was built here by the Defoe Boat & Motor Works. She is an ice breaker, constructed for year-round service. She is a 1,100 ton boat, 165 feet long with a draft of 13½ feet and is expected to initiate a new program on the Great Lakes of keeping navigation open during the winter.

Lieut. Commander L. W. Perkins will command the Escanaba; other superior officers commissioned today include: Lieut. Paul B. Cronk, executive officer; Lieut. E. J. Roland, navigator; Lieut. M. T. Brasswell, engineer officer; Ensign J. D. Harrington, communication officer, and Machinist A. J. Wallace, assistant engineer officer.

Mississippi shipped 133 carloads of sweet potatoes last year, which was about 1 percent of the total production.
